Nesby Held In Stabbing

CHARLESTON — Clifford Nesby, 36, Charleston, is being held in the Mississippi County jail in connection with the Saturday night death of Charles Desmute, 87, Charleston.

Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons said Nesby and Desmute were involved in an argument while in the room of Lester White on W. Pecan St. shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday.

Some 20 minutes later, Nesby started out the door and was struck across the nose with a bean knife by Desmute.

Nesby reportedly shoved Desmute outside, took the knife and struck him on top of the head. Desmute died approximately two hours later in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The body is in the Davis Funeral Home in Charleston.

Nesby was arrested by 7:15 p.m. Saturday by policeman Willis Cox. No charges have been filed.

Truck Accident Kills Man

MARSTON — Marvin L. Hickerson, 35, of route three, Portageville, was killed yesterday when his pick-up truck went off the highway and overturned at 3:50 p.m. on route EE four and a half miles west of here.

Hickerson was taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti where he died of his injuries at 6:20 p.m.

According to the highway patrol, Hickerson was driving at an excessive rate of speed at the time of the accident.

Survivors include his parents, Polk and Minnie Fisher Hickerson, route three, Portageville; two brothers Eugene Hickerson of Flint, Mich. and Jimmy Hickerson of Rockford, Ill.; and one sister Fay Hornburg of New Madrid.

Visitation is after 4 p.m. today at DeLisle Funeral Chapel in Portageville, where services will be 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the Rev. Floyd Quick of Point Pleasant officiating. Burial will be in Portageville Cemetery.

Two City Traffic Mishaps

Police reported two traffic accidents over the weekend, and both of them occurred on Saturday.

At 10:50 a.m., Judy Ann Chism, 501 S. New Madrid, backed her car into a parked City Cab in front of Barkett's Country Kitchen at the Midtowner Village shopping center.

According to police, Miss Chism failed to see the cab because of rain and fogged windows. No arrests were made.

A two- car accident at 12:49 p.m. at the intersection of Ingram and E. Malone, resulted in two women being taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital for observation.

Released following examination were Charlotte Arnold and Beatrice Crawford. The Crawford woman suffered a slight head injury.

According to police, the accident occurred when a car driven east on E. Malone by Robert Earl Jarvis, 18 Green Meadows, collided with a car driven by the Crawford woman. The Crawford car had turned onto Malone from S. Ingram. No arrests were made according to police.

Sergeant Fights Fire

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — A home bound Air Force sergeant may have averted a major forest fire early today in south central Missouri.

The highway patrol said Sgt. Emerson C. Dickson Jr., of Waynesville fought the blaze with a hand shovel and then tapped into a telephone line and alerted the patrol.

Forest service workers rushed to the scene, an area bordering the Clark National Forest in Phelps County and Fort Leonard Wood in Pulaski County. The blaze was brought under control shortly after 4 a.m. after burning out of control nearly four hours.

Dickson told the patrol he was en route home from Scott Air Force Base, Ill., when he noticed smoke near the Phelps-Pulaski county line bordering Interstate 44. He turned around because, he said, he noticed a number of homes in the area.

Dickson said he tried to alert any residents but found no one at home. He then released a number of animals that were tied or penned up in the path of the fire.

The patrol said Dickson first tried to halt the blaze by shoveling a break in its path but was unable to make any headway. He then rigged some equipment from his car and tapped into the telephone line and called Troop I headquarters at Rolla. Troopers said Dickson suffered some burns in fighting the blaze.

Draft Call Will Be 15,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending a five-month pause, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird today announced a draft call of 15,000 to be spread over April, May and June.

Laird said 5,000 young men would be called in each of those months.

This is the first draft call since October when the Pentagon issued a call of 10,000 men for the final three months of 1971.

There were no draft calls in the first quarter of 1972. The Pentagon waited to gauge the effect of new pay raises and volunteer enlistments and the Army was reduced in size to meet congressionally mandated cuts.

Addressing the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today, Laird repeated a statement he made last week that only 50,000 or fewer men would be drafted in all of 1972. About half the number called last year.

The secretary said the lower calls had been made possible by the success of the Vietnamization program and the continued withdrawal of U.S. troops from the war.

Residence Qualifications

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court took under advisement today a key question in the legal battle over residence qualifications of legislators. Taken for study was the question whether a member of the legislature may demand and get subpoenas from the House speaker without formal action of the House or a committee.

Rep. Richard Marshall, RWebster Groves, charged that he needed them in his challenge of the residence qualifications of several Democratic House members.

But Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, said he could not issue subpoenas without formal House or committee authority and certainly not blank ones which would not show who was being summoned to testify or why.

The issue turns on a section of the law that has been in the same form since 1824, three years after Missouri became a state.

Marshall first tried to test the residency qualifications of Speaker Pro Tem Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann. After the speaker refused to supply signed subpoena forms, the House Elections Committee held what turned out to be a noisy exchange between Marshall and Hickey.

Methodist Pastor Dies

Rev. Joseph H. Wagner

The Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, 61, pastor of the First United Methodist Church since 1964, died today at 4 a.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital where he was admitted several hours earlier, suffering from severe chest pains.

Born Aug. 27, 1910, in Jackson, he was the son of the late Martin H. and Bessie Henry Wagner.

He was a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, and he received his divinity degree from Eden Theological Seminary in Webster Groves. He did graduate work at Northwestern University, the University of Michigan and the Pasadena School of Speech. He served his first pastorate at Manchester in St. Louis county.

He served as a Navy chaplain during World War II in the Pacific theater for two years. Following his return to the states, he served as Wesley Foundation instructor in English at Northwest State College in Maryville. Before entering the ministry, he had taught speech and English at Flat River Junior College in Flat River.

He served pastorates throughout Missouri and was superintendent of the Hannibal- Mexico district. He was a curator of Central Methodist College, a member of McKendree Chapel Board of Trustees, an officer of the Missouri East Conference Board of Education and a member of the committee on camps and conferences. He was also a member of the Board of Directors, Missouri United Methodist Foundation, the Board of Managers, Pastor's School and of the Wesley Foundation Board of Directors.

He is survived by his wife, Vera Seabaugh Wagner of 1015 North Kingshighway; three daughters, Mrs. Rebecca Burns, Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Patricia Corcoran, Heidelberg, Germany; and Mary Esther Wagner, Sikeston; one brother, Martin Wagner of Houston, Tex.; one sister, Martha Wagner, Kirkwood; and one granddaughter, Jennifer Lyn Corcoran of Heidelberg, Germany.

Citizens Lobby To Start Petitions

Public Meetings

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Citizen's Lobby, a recently organized group of young Missourians, announced today it will start an initiative petition campaign soon designed to make public all meetings of public boards, committees and agencies.

In a statement, the lobby said final wording of the petition will be made public within 10 days to two weeks. A steering committee will be named to push the drive.

An initiative petition, to put a proposed law on the ballot in November, will require signatures of at least 8 per cent of the voters who cast ballots in the last election for governor, in at least seven of the 10 congressional districts.

Carl M. Wilson, Citizen's Lobby chairman, said "our public officials are not ready to remove the traditionally convenient secret voting in closed meetings. They have even developed two faces on the issue. While many have publicly condemned the executive session that allows secret voting, most of them are not ready to take realistic steps to eliminate this secrecy."

The lobby said a pending bill, sponsored by Rep. R.J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, is not satisfactory because it allows closed door sessions for certain purposes, including "discussing pending legislation, if an opening on the legislation is held beforehand."

A lobby director, Raymond A. Appleton, said "this exception is a large enough loophole to make this bill a complete waste of everybody's time. Furthermore, the bill does not eliminate the escapist alternative that all public officials have by simply voting present.

The lobby said its petition will require all legislative committees to keep a public record of each committee member's vote. No public body would work without a quorum of two-thirds of the members present.

A member would have to vote either for or against a proposal and proxies could not be voted.

Bombing Charges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Federal agents said today they are trying to come up with a concrete motive for an alleged plot to blow up three public buildings in Ste. Genevieve, Mo., about 45 miles southof St. Louis.

"It appears a really good, solid motive is lacking. I don't know why the buildings were selected," an agent of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms unit of the U.S. Treasury Department said.

Two men were charged in warrants Friday with violation of the federal antibombing laws. Federal agents said Michael A. Wolff, 19, of Festus, Mo., and Michael H. Clayton, 22 of Bloomsdale, Mo., were released on $1,000 bond each.

The two men and two other persons were arrested Thursday night as federal officers and local police raided an abandoned farm house west of Ste. Genevieve. Authoritiss said they found nine firebombs made of wine bottles in the house.

The A.T.F. agent said the other two persons were released after questioning. But he said additional arrests were possible.

The alleged plot involved the Ste. Genevieve city hall, the county courthouse and a tax office, the agent said.

A Missouri Highway Patrol spokesman said a possible motive for the reported plan to firebomb the city hall was to destroy police records.

Authorities said the courthouse might have been included because of court actions pending against persons involvediin the investigation.

Investigators made no speculation on why the tax office may hve been involved.

The A.T.F. spokesman said the U.S. Attorney's office in St. Louis had entered the investigation. He said a federal grand jury might consider the case when the investitation is completed.

Tuesday Is Last Day To Register

Tomorrow is the last day for voters to register for the municipal elections on April 4.

Voters may register at the City Administrative Building on N. New Madrid from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The law requires those registering to be a minimum of 18 years old and to have lived in the state one year, the county 60 days and the city 30 days before the date of the election.

Bills For This Week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Most Missouri legislative action is in the House this week, with important bills that were given special priority due for first round debate.

The House meets at 3 p.m., the Senate an hour later.

Among the bills lifted out of themuck by the House Rules Committee is one to open the meetings of all public bodies to the public—district, city, county and state. It is sixth down on the special calendar set up for these top priority measures.

Also on the special list are bills to lower from .15 of 1 per cent to .10 of 1 per cent the amount of alcohol in the blood to make a person legally intoxicated; a no-fault divorce bill; one to set up a state milk inspection board and one to create a fire marshal in the highway patrol.

Ready for House passage are several constitutional amendment proposals, including one to legalize lotteries by charitable and civic groups, and another to exempt personal property from taxation.

Pending when the Senate comes back to work is a new fight over a bill designed to speed up pollution control in industries. It would set up a state environmental improvement authority with power to issue revenue bonds and buy pollution control devices—or even build new plants and lease them to industries.

As introduced by Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, the pollution equipment or the plants would be exempt from taxation and so would the interest on the revenue bonds, which would be payable in 20 years. Then the industries could buy the devices or the facilities for a nominal sum.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, DHillsboro, called the bill a way to take big industry off the hook on pollution control. He wants to cut out the tax exemptions.

He said he would try to work out an amendment to do that over the weekend.

One bill ready for Senate debate would allow the transfer of incorrigibles and trouble makers from the state training schools for boys and girls to adult penal institutions.

Another would allow the board of training schools to build a maximum security facility for an estimated $4.1 million. But Rep. E.J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, the House appropriations chairman, has said the state can't afford such an expenditure this year.

Near the top of the Senate debate calendar is a bill to make Missouri's income tax laws conform with federal laws, the socalled income tax reform bill. It has set off repeated battles in the legislatures the last few years and is expected to produce more verbal fireworks when it comes up.

Committee schedules are unusually light this week, with Senate committees hearing mostly House bills and House committees considering bills already passed by the Senate.

Supreme Court To Rule On Govt. Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on the government's power to classify its documents as secret.

The test case, accepted for review next term, concerns nine reports and letters prepared for President Nixon on the Cannikin underground nuclear test.

Last October, Judges Harold Leventhal and Charles Fahy of the U.S. Circuit Court here cleared the way for the possible public release of some of the documents.

At issue is the government policy of classifying all documents in a particular file as "secret" or "top secret" if one of them contains material considered sensitive.

In other actions today, the court:

—Refused 7 to 2 to pass on whether the Vietnam war is constitutional. The majority has so held in half a dozen prior cases since 1967.

—Prevented thousands of prisoners, convicted before 1970, from challenging their convictions on grounds they had no lawyer at their preliminary hearing.

—Cleared the way for a ruling this term on whether a federal grand jury may question aides of Sen. Mike Gravel, DAlaska, about publication of the Pentagon Papers.

Ruling in a suit brought by Rep. Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii, and 32 other members of Congress, Leventhal and Fahy ordered U.S. District Court Judge George Hart Jr. to examine the Cannikin papers and determine which of them "are separable from the secret remainder."

The Justice Department said in appealing that this "judicial inquiry into matters which are peculiarly within the province of the executive" is inconsistent with provisions of the Freedom of Information Act of 1970.

That law generally makes government records available to the public, but has several exceptions, including material the executive branch finds should be kept secret "in the interest of the national defense or foreign policy."

The reports on Cannikin were compiled by a committee headed by John N. Irwin II, the undersecretary of State. The committee was established in 1969 by Nixon to advise him. Cannikin was carried out at Amchitka Island in Alaska last Nov. 6.

City Council Meets Tonight

The Sikeston City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the City Administrative Building on N. New Madrid.

The agenda for tonight's meeting was not complete at press time, but two items coming before the council will be a resolution expressing the city's appreciation of the work of Ira Keller, who recently resigned as chairman of the planning and zoning commission, and an ordinance on the resubdivision of block five of the Clayton-Heights.

U.S. Planes Bomb

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes attacked two more antiaircraft batteries in North Vietnam Sunday, and B52 heavy bombers stepped up their raids in neighboring Laos, the U.S. Command reported.

It was the fifth successive day of raids in North Vietnam and brought the year's total of strikes there to 80 so far.

The command said U.S. Navy fighter escorts bombed antiaircraft guns in the Ha Tinh region 96 and 106 miles north of the demilitarized zone after they fired on U.S. reconnaissance planes. Results of the strikes were not known, but there was no damage to the American planes, the command said.

The U.S. Command reported a total of 11 such strikes in the four previous days and said the targets were all antiaircraft defenses. Tpe North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry in two statements charged that many of the strikes were in populated areas and killed or wounded many civilians.

Meanwhile, the focus of the B52 bombing campaign shifted from South Vietnam back to supply routes in Laos and Cambodia.

Although the U.S. Command does not disclose targets of B52 raids outside of South Vietnam, the objectives were believed to be the North Vietnamese buildups which U.S. sources said are continuing along the western side of the central highlands and farther north along the border.

A brigade of up to 5,000 South Vietnamese paratroopers moved from Saigon to Pleiku, in the highlands, during the weekend to reinforce government forces in the region.

The South Vietnamese Command reported scattered, small-scale ground action Sunday and early today, with 39 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed and two captured, and government casualties of six dead and 15 wounded.

An explosion in a river convoy 10 miles east of Saigon Sunday morning sank three barges loaded with 300 tons of ammunition and damaged two escort vessels. Three South Vietnamese were reported missing and six injured.

Enemy gunners fired three rockets into the Cam Ranh Air Base on the coast 200 miles northeast of Saigon, wounding one American and damaging one building, the U.S. Command said. It was the first rocket attack on the Cam Ranh base since Jan. 16.

In the political-diplomatic sphere, U.S. Asst. Secretary of State Marshall Green met for two hours with President Nguyen Van Thieu and told him that American officials held no meetings with North Vietnamese officials in Peking during President Nixon's visit, South Vietnamese officials reported. They said Green also assured Thieu no private arrangements concerning the Vietnam war were made between Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai.

There had been reports prior to Nixon's visit to China that the North Vietnamese politburo member who negotiated with Henry Kissinger in Paris, Le Duc Tho, might be in Peking when Nixon and Kissinger were.

City Will Host Special Olympics

The first Sikeston Regional Special Olympics will be held Tuesday, April 11, at the Senior High School Stadium, it was announced today.

John Andrews, recreation director of the Regional Diagnostic Clinic, is serving as the regional olympic director. The meet is being held under the sponsorship of the Missouri Special Olympics, Inc.

Andrews said mentally retarded children from area training schools and special education classes of local schools will participate in the Olympics is composed of five events. They include the 50-yard dash, the 300- yard run, the softball throw, the standing long jump and the high jump. There will be competition for both boys and girls, he added.

"A unique feature of the Special Olympics is the competitive division concept," Andrews said. Each event, he explained, is divided into age groups: eight to nine- year- olds, 10- 12-year- olds, 13- 15- year- olds, 16- 18- year- olds, and 19 and over. Andrews added that in order to give each child the best chance of competing, each age group is divided into ability groups. Each competitor will be tested in his events prior to the meet and then assigned to a division.

Winners from all division will then advance to the Fourth Annual Missouri Special Olympics to be held on the Missouri Valley College campus at Marshall on June 3. Approximately one- thousand children are expected for the state meet.

The 100 state winners will have the opportunity to advance to the International Special Olympics at Los Angeles in July.

OUR KIND
OF PEOPLE

The Congressional Medal of Honor Society of the United States of America is probably the most select private club in the world. Consisting of 305 living holders of the Medal of Honor from a veteran population of 28-million, the Society's members hold the nation's highest military award for bravery. The medal, created by Act of Congress, was signed into law by President Lincoln on December 21, 1861. It is the country's oldest decoration in continuous use. Since its inception, 3,376 medals have been awarded.

The President awards the medal in the name of Congress to persons who, while on active duty in the armed forces of the United States, perform acts of heroism — at the risk of life, above and beyond the call of duty. Despite having met this common standard of accomplishment, members of the Society are most uncommon for they represent no single rank, branch of service, station in life, race, color, creed or national origin.

Foremost among the objectives of thy Society are: to serve our country in peace as they did in war, to inspire and stimulate our youth to become worthy citizens of our country and to foster and perpetuate Americanism.

In furtherance of these objectives the Society has established a Gold Medal Patriots Award which, of itself, has become one of the great honors of our time. On April 27, 1972, at a commemorative dinner in New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, the medal will be given to the Hon. David J. Mahoney, chairman of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, in recognition of his contributions toward a more significant understanding of the historical meaning and future implications of the American experience.

Mahoney, who heads Norton Simon Inc., has frequently been referred to as the "Salesman for America." As chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, it is his responsibility to channel the energies and imaginations of all Americans in leading the country toward a truly meaningful observance of its Independence.

In the conduct of this task, Mr. Mahoney will have the support of many organizations and Americans from all walks of life, but no one, or any group, will strive to perpetuate the ideals of Americanism more than the members of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society. Its members represent the kind of people who have led our country to greatness and world leadership.

According to the Idaho Power Company, the country's generating system helps to keep your electric clocks at the correct time. The utility company notes that "Some years ago, electric companies throughout the country agreed to use a standard of 60 cycles per second for a frequency of alternating current power generation. Today, electric clocks in the nation count seconds at the same speed. To make sure, time of a master clock in Canton, Ohio -- accurate to within a few thousandths of a second -- is constantly compared with that of a clock operated from the nation's power systems. If these clocks vary by two seconds, notice is given to all electric utilities to change generation slightly to correct the time. The frequency of an electric motor that drives a clock is driven by the frequency of the alternating current. If it receives 59 cycles per second, it runs slow. If it receives 61, it runs fast. It must receive 60 cycles per second."

LET'S COOL IT!

And actions of the USD 409 board of education yesterday in meeting a crisis resulting from tensions among white and black students is to be commended.

Simmering and reaching the near boiling point on several occasions in past years, the growing racial tension at Atchison High School finally exploded in a general melee during the noon lunch break yesterday.

School officials and police moved swiftly to quell the outbreak. This reduced the number of injuries as well as possibly more serious tragedy for our young people.

Cooperation of the community is needed in bringing about an amicable settlement of the situation. We are sure the school officials, parents and law enforcement officials as well as the great majority of students are making every effort to see that this is done.

With that in mind, the board of education has arranged a general meeting of all concerned to be held at the Atchison High School auditorium this evening. It is hoped from this meeting that a program will emerge in which activities at our high school will return to normal.

Atchison High school has always been integrated. For years before the integration movement blacks and whites got along peacefully at AHS, both in the classroom and on the athletic field. There is no reason that this should not be so today.

Concerned parents have every right to expect that their children are safe in our schools. Education of the children and young people should not be jeopardized by a minority of students, white or black, who find violence as a means to win recognition.

As events stand today, solution to the problem depends on the cooperation of parents with school board officials in seeking the right methods in reopening Atchison High school and keeping peace in its halls.

It is time an incident of yesterday's proportion is met headon, not by school officials alone, but by the entire community.

—Atchison Kansas Globe.

OF MONKEYS
AND MEN

In a more serious vein, scientists and students from the University of Wisconsin offered observations on man based upon research with monkeys at the Wisconsin Regional Primate Research Center.

Drs. Harry Harlow and Allyn Deets concluded that aggression is probably an inborn trait in primates — including humans.

The researchers theorize that aggression toward members of the same species may be an important factor in allowing some primates to adapt to changing living conditions. "The relatively aggressive rhesus monkey has been able to adapt to environment ranging from remote forest areas to overcrowded urban ghettos," they said.

Gorillas, however, which display relatively little aggression toward each other, "are now threatened with extinction, being unable to cope with man's encroachment upon their traditional habitat."

In a related study, nine undergraduate students reported that monkeys forced to live in crowded cages with several other strange monkeys become alarmingly more aggressive than usual.

Jake Emmerick, a senior psychology major and the group's spokesman, said the results of the study of monkeys caged under various degrees of crowding have great relevance to man.

When four monkeys were housed in a cage meant for one animal, rates of aggressive behavior jumped. Four monkeys kept together in larger cages showed less inclination toward aggressive behavior, and even when aggression did occur, the victim had a chance to escape.

Emmerick noted that prisoners are similar to overcrowded cages of monkeys. As long as human prisoners are kept in crowded facilities, he continued, there is little chance that they will learn to adjust to life outside the prison.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Space isn't such a stranger to us now. Thirty American astronauts have flown in it for a total time of 7,704 hours and 51 minutes—nearly 46 weeks.

Some researchers are worried about accepting blood from donors who use aspirin regularly. Aspirin has a tendency to prolong bleeding time and can interfere with the proper clotting of blood.

Millions of people have suffered colds, but no one ever described the effects of a cold better than Charles Dickens did in this letter written in 1843: "I am at this moment deaf in the ears, hoarse in the throat, red in the nose, green in the gills, damp in the eyes, twitchy in the joints and fractious in the temper from a most intolerable and oppressive cold."

A matter of tongues: English is on the way to becoming the first world language. It is the mother tongue of only about 300 million people and the main second language of 100 million more. But about three-fourths of the world's businessmen use English, 70 per cent of world mail is written in English and so is half of the world's scientific literature.

PRODUCT SAFETY STANDARDS ARE ENDORSED BY INDUSTRY

Support for federal safety standards for common household products has been voiced by the National Association of Manufacturers. But the NAM warned that proposed legislation "will prove no monument to safety progress, if confined solely to government standards-making, and should not be represented to the public as such."

The industry spokesmen told the Senate Commerce Committee that "as far as we can determine, U. S. manufacturers overwhelmingly recognize the legitimate interest of the federal government in the safety of products in national markets."

They also contended that faulty products cause only small fraction of injuries and that most occur through the "hazards of human behavior." For these reasons, NAM predicted that the effect of the proposed legislation "would be minimal" in terms of lessening accidents and injuries.

Voluntary Action Praised... In accepting the objectives of proposed safety legislation, the Association called for "every opportunity to remedy any problems" through voluntary standards prior to imposition of mandatory rules and for extensive research and educational programs with regard to use of consumer products. "We further ask for every procedural safeguard against precipitous or over-zealous administration in this largely untried area of regulation," the Association said.

The statement also asked for congressional and judicial protection in determining the "balanced public interest" and said, "there must be no one-man decision-making affecting the interests of diverse consumers, employees, investors, taxpayers and others who comprise the whole public interest."

Declaring it was "under no illusion" as to accepting the burdens of technical data, penalties, government misinformation and errors, and adverse publicity, the Association spoke vigourously against "hasty or irresponsible action in the name of safety."

Principles Listed... Other basic principles advocated by the Association called for extensive research to establish a need for mandatory standards before promulgation; maximum reliance on voluntary standards and informal procedures which it declared were faster and provided as much safety as mandatory rules; the establishment of a presidentially-appointed board to issue safety rules after a finding of need by the safety administrator; and Congressional review of product standards.

THE MINDLESS SLAVES OF COMMUNISM

Through the "magic" of U.S. space satellite technology, the world has been allowed to see the zombie-like thousands of enslaved Chinese sweeping the snow on the streets of Peking. Young and old, strong and weak, male and female, they turn out like a bunch of robots. Silent, uncomplaining, joyless, they march to the beat of the drums of their communist masters. Expressing no thoughts of their own, with love amputated from their lives. The faceless Chinese in their hundreds of millions are permitted only to live for the greater glory of the communist party and the iron dictatorship of the state, which reaches into every block, every family, every life of a quarter of the earth's population.

Informed Freedomists knew before seeing it on TV's revealing eye that the 800 million Chinese were treated as mindless slaves. The mystery is that so many seem to find the sight of these robots inspiring. Thank goodness it is not the good U.S. working people who are filled with reverential awe at the hand-swept cleanliness of China's streets and the stoic slaves who worship their masters, or else.

With some network announcers praising the results of this bloody communist supression of every human right and freedom, the good people of this land should make it a point to call to the attention of family, friends and neighbors the realities behind the grinding equality brought to full flower by communism. If properly alerted, our people will be stronger than ever in resisting the praise of such destructive, all-powerful, ever-present dictatorship which denies love, laughter and the pursuit of happiness and freedom. The U.S. public will have to do most of the alerting for themselves. Our political leaders and our national networks are selling the other side instead of promoting freedom.

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — When Democrats run afoul of federal corruption laws, the Justice Department quite properly throws the book at them. Only last month, for example, aging Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., got an 18-month sentence for taking a $25,000 bribe.

But this same zealous prosecution doesn't seem to apply to loyal Nixon supporters on Capitol Hill.

For instance, we wrote in March 1970, that Rep. Jim Collins, R-Tex., had been fleecing some his employees out of part of their federal paychecks.

But it was Collins's administrative assistant, George Haag, who wound up with a 23-count kickback indictment. For weeks thereafter, the loyal Haag kept his mouth shut about Collins, whose elegant manners have won him the nickname "Gentleman Jim."

But a few days ago, Haag decided that Collins wasn't so gentlemanly after all and blew the whistle on him.

Through a new lawyer, Tom Wadden, the disillusioned Haag got word to Federal Judge Oliver Gasch that he feared he had been gulled by Collins into putting his own head in the noose.

During the pre-indictment FBI investigation, Wadden said, the Congressman retained the prominent Dallas law firm of Golden, Burrow, Potts and Boeckman to defend Haag. The legal fees were picked up by the Congressman.

"Certainly, a logical inference," the Judge was informed, "would be that the firm was retained IN FACT to represent Congressman Collins's interests. . . and only coincedentally those interests of Haag when they did not conflict with the Congressman's."

Collins got cash?

Furthermore, charged Haag, the government "is in possession of evidence that irrefutably establishes that Congressman Collins received moneys during the indictment period from ...employees."

The government also knows that the employees' money was "deposite in the Congressman's personal checking account," Haag alleged.

Yet Collins, thanks to the Justice Department, is still defending Nixon policies on Capitol Hill, while Haag faces a 23-count indictment that could put him in prison.

As to Haag's charges, Collins told us: "Those are not the facts." At the Dallas law firm's foffices, attorney Duncan Boeckman declined all comment.

In a second case, the Justice Department has dawdled for months over Rep. J. Irving Whalley, R-Pa., the ex-UN delegate whose ingenious kickback schemes we began revealing last September.

The FBI made a few desultory passes at Whalley's ex-employees, but failed even to question Robert Collary, a Duncansville, Pa., print shop owner. Whalley paid him thousands of dollars as a "Clerk" on his House payroll. In fact, Collary kicked back $1,500 to $2,000 to Whalley in the form of free printing for Whalley. Both denied this is a "kickback."

Now, Justice may find itself outdistanced by a motorcycle-riding country prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney John Woodcock, of Blair County. Woodcock has been in Washington quietly looking into Whalley's payroll records and political contributions.

No matter who gets to Whalley first, he may find himself indicting an ex-Congressman. After our second series of revelations, Whalley gave up and announced he will not run for reelection in November.

Footnote: To the credit of out-going Attorney General John Mitchell, he moved againstNew England Mafia big shot Paul Coppola, whose extortion and usury activities we revealed in November 1969. Significantly, Coppola is a long-time friend and ex-business partner of Rep. Bob Giaimo-- a Democrat.

Taiwan Training

A secret intelligence report discloses, for example, that Taiwan's National Security Bureau and Ministry of Defense has "concluded agreements with the governments of Cambodia, Thailand and the Republic of Vietnam, wherein (Taiwan) will provide political warfare training for four groups of officers from these countries.

"The political training will be administered and conducted by the (Defense Ministry's) general political warfare department and will emphasize the following subjects: psychological warfare, anti-communist security procedures, the understanding of communist theory and practice, organization of the civilian population and propaganda techniques.

Klan Crows -- When the FBI's residential intellectual, William Sullivan, was forced out of imperious old J.Edgar Hoover, even some of Hoover's most loyal allies were distressed. But removal of the capable number three FBI official brought applause from Ku Klux Klan "Wizard " Robert M. Shelton. "We must commend Mr. Hoover's stand against Sullivan," crowed Shelton in the Klan's smear sheet. It was Sullivan's vigorous intelligence worker which brought the Klan to its present low estate.

Health Hearings -- Consumer-conscious Senators Philip Hart, D-Mich, and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, will soon be leveling their guns on private health insurance companies. They have scheduled a series of investigative hearings for early this Spring. The major question the Senators will be asking the insurers is whether they pay hospital bills blindly without checking to see whether the service was of high quality and all charges justified.

Secret Bank Acounts: $100 million yearly welfare looting found in one big city alone

WASHINGTON — Working one's way through the weird maze of multi-million dollar welfare money looting is much like revisiting James Bond's Goldfinger. There are secret bank accounts. Corrupt city officials. Faked identities. Political pressures from on high. Prefabricated riots. Grim threats of violence. Ineligibles bumping the poor from impoverished and virtually bankrupt aid-to-the needy "treasuries."

Not much of this will be in the General Accounting Office's (GAO) now famed, still-secret report on millions of ineligible welfare clients. But the criminal looting still is making millionaires of small combines of men.

The worst of this truly ghoulish mulcting of city, state --- and especially Federal --funds is centered in New York.

As you contemplate these figures, remember that the Federal government pays at least 40 per cent of the nation's welfare bill. Thus, if the experts are interpreting their statistics correctly, some $100 million annually is being lost, stolen, wasted or simply handed to crooked operatives in New York City -- and this costs the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare some $40 million of the nation's tax money.

It is estimated that some 60,000 to 65,000 ineligibles are on the rosters in this one city. Until the new city-state - Federal study, now under way, is completed no one will actually know how much money is wasted -- money which could remake many of the big town's ghettos. At this moment, Jule Sugarman, the city's Commissioner of Social Services, tells me that at least $30 million is being wasted or stolen annually. That's definite. And he hasn't even started counting.

And this isn't touching the Medicaid scandals, some of which have broken while some indictments are still to come out of the nation's senior District Attorney, Frank Hogan.

There is, for example, one case in which the accused admitted just as their trial opened they stole $2 million. Just like that.

There is a grand jury report on a factoring (financing) firm which held secret bank accounts containing $1.6 million. This money was piled up with deposits of Medicaid payments sent by corrupt city officials in "payment" of fictitious bills -- or no bills at all. The checks simply were made out to the company and sent along on the theory that the finance firm had paid out money in advance to physicians, dentists and medical clinic directors who allegedly could not afford to wait for the slow-paying city to come through.

One of these finance firms actually went into the medical clinic business itself just so it could defraud he city. Intricate schemes were developed at some clinics to defraud the crippled and ailing poor, even to the point of cheating them on simple pills and drugs.

One city official told Hogan's grand jury one such factoring house dispatched its executives to warn officials of the Medicaid program that if bills submitted by this firm were not paid there "would be riots this summer." There was nothing subtle in this threat of unwrapping pre-packaged riots.

These factoring "houses" discounted medical center billings at a rate of 12 to 15 per cent as a commission for paying Medicaid providers immediately. One firm alone discounted $12 million worth of bills annually at this rate. -- thus it averaged about $1.5 million in one year -- on bills which already were padded. Mind you, these are just a few instances out of many which could be reported. And 40 cents out of every stolen dollar comes right out of Federal taxes.

Furthermore, the GAO has been told by New York State officials there are at least 5.3 per cent ineligibles on the city's list of 1.3 million welfare clients.

So lurid is the looting that the city's Human Resources Administrator is developing a system of "welfare banks -- payout centers" to which the client and even the vendors will come with laminated identity cards for cash payments. If such a system can be computerized, the city will set up about 100 of them so centrally located that the welfare and Medicaid people should be able to walk to these "banks", draw cash, or indicate what bills should be paid.

GAO people are not saying New York is typical. They say it's the worst. There are states such as West Virginia where, despite Appalachian poverty, there is welfare honesty and money control.

But there are now about 10.4 million needy families on welfare and Medicaid rolls in the U.S. And they may be increasing shortly by 100,000 persons a month. The needy must not go without dignified help. Their exploiters must not go unpunished. Or doesn't anyone care?

N.H. Primary Race In Home-Stretch

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — In the last campaign day before Tuesday's presidential primary, Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and George S. McGovern went handshaking through New Hampshire's factories today after swapping claims about who was the first to disclose campaign finance sources.

Supporters of both candidates saw little impact on Tuesday's outcome from the first face-toface meeting of the two, along with their three rivals, in Durham Sunday night, and a sampling of factory workers confirmed that.

As Muskie shook several hundred hands at the Doehla Reading Card factory in this industrial town, a heavy majority of workers told reporters they hadn't watched the debate. Most who had weren't swayed.

While Muskie went through plants here and in Manchester, McGovern followed a similar pattern. The admitted underdog, he started an hour earlier.

Asked about McGovern's charge that it was a "farce" to say he revealed his 1970 contributors but stopped when the South Dakota senator failed to follow, Muskie said he had learned that disclosure can't work "if one candidate can set the guidelines."

He said the rules must apply equally to all. In criticizing Muskie, McGovern called on the Maine senator to match McGovern's recent disclosure of all of his 1971 and 1972 contributors, a listing which a Muskie aide termed "phony and self-serving."

The issue proved the chief difference between the two senators on a 90-minute televised debate here Sunday night.

They were joined in the year's first campaign debate by the three other Democrats listed on Tuesday's primary ballot—Sen. Vance Hartke o Indiana, Mayor Samuel F. Yorty of Los Angeles and antipoverty worker Edward Coll of Hartford, Conn.

Muskie, from neighboring Maine, is favored to lead the field Tuesday, but political analysts will be watching his percentage. Early in the campaign, aides talked of 50 per cent as a minimal goal, but a poll published Sunday by the Boston Globe gave Muskie 42 per cent, McGovern 26 and other Democratic candidates a total of 12 per cent with 20 per cent of the vote undecided.

In the Republican primary, President Nixon is expected to win easily over Paul N. McCloskey of California and Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio.

Nixon may also get some Democratic write-in votes—he got 5 per cent of them four years ago.

So will Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, who told several hundred backers in Manchester Sunday he plans to fight actively for the Democratic nomination in other primaries. Backers have conducted a wellfinanced write-in campaign in New Hampshire for the Arkansas congressman.

The debate was actually a series of opening an' closing speeches sandwiched around answers to eight questions from a panel of newsmen.

Yorty, who has the backing of conservative publisher William Loeb's Manchester Union Leader, repeatedly attacked the views of Muskie, McGovern and Hartke, calling them "members of the left-wing liberal bloc in the United States Senate." He criticized their votes to reduce defense spending.

"I don't really think they have much to debate each other about," Yorty said.

Coll, who at 32 is three years younger than the constitutional minimum for the presidency, enlivened the proceedings by occasionally waving a black rubber rat to illustrate what he termed "the No. 1 killer in America."

Hartke, who has little of the organized support of his fellow senators, said the primary will prove whether "person-to-person campaigning by a poor boy from Southern Indiana" is still possible, or whether campaigns have been taken over by big money.

McGovern raised the campaign finance question, saying that because of the "serious, corroding power of money on politics" he felt it necessary that New Hampshire voters "understand who is financing th campaign of the various candidates.

"I have publicly disclosed the names and the amounts of every contributor who has supported in any way the McGovern campaign," he said. "It seems to me that those other candidates who are asking for the trust of the people ought to be willing to make the same kind of disclosure."

Muskie, who has said he won't start to disclose 1972 contributions until the strict new campaign financing law takes effect April 7 and applies to all candidates, said he had disclosed the sources of his contributions in 1970, and "was the first candidate to do so.

"Because of the failure of Sen. McGovern and other candidates to follow my lead, I decided we needed a policy that applied to all candidates, including the president of the United States," he said.

After the program, McGovern said Muskie's statement provided "a little badly needed comic relief," adding it was a farce to talk about disclosures in 1970 before major campaign funding took place. Muskie aides said their 1970 total was about $300,000. The recent McGovern listing totaled $1.2 million.

"There are a lot of people who have contributed and were not in that report," he said.

He later amended that to say that Muskie headquarters had heard from several persons who said they had given $1,000 each to Muskie and McGovern but were omitted from the McGovern list.

Aides to both senators gave figures showing they had spent just under $65,33 for radio and television in the New Hampshire primary, the limit agreed upon by Democratic candidates.

Environmental Complaint May Halt Dam Project

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Environmental Defense Fund will combine a legal tactic already successful elsewhere with an appeal for consideration of human and environmental factors in an effort to shut down the Harry S. Truman Reservoir.

EDF was to file a complaint in federal court in Kansas City charging the dam could cause extinction of the paddlefish, a remnant of prehistoric times that has the body of a catfish a long bill like a swordfish a spokesman said.

The largest concentration of paddlefish, also known as the spoonbill, in the United States is in the area. The only other species is found in the Tangtze River in China.

Scientists recently discovered that blood chemistry of the paddlefish is similar to man's, which makes the fish in demand for research into the cause of human cancer and the reasons for tissue rejection in heart transplants.

The lake formed by the dam would be the largest in Missouri or Kansas, and is about 100 miles southeast of Kansas City, near Warsaw, Mo.

On completion in June 1979, it is expected to cover 55,600 acres at normal water level and up to 209,000 acres at flood stage. It is estimated to cost $294 million.

The EDF complaint seeks a temporary injunction to stop the work because the Army Corps of Engineers has not filed an environmental impact statement with the government as required by a 1969 law.

An Army Engineer spokesman said an environmental impact statement is being prepared

Failure to file such a statement enabled the EDF to win court orders to halt other projects, including the Tellico Dam on the Tennessee River and the Gillham Dam on the Cossatot River in Arkansas.

Penal Director Says Public Need Not Fear Furlough Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Corections Director William G. Miller says the public need not fear prisoners who may soon be released on furlough under a bill pending in the state lgislature.

"We're not going to make any wholesale releases," Miller said, in referring to a bill which would give the department authority to let inmates leave correctional institutions for specific reasons.

"Just because we would have the authority doesn't mean that just any prisoner is going to be granted this privilege," he said.

"We're going to be very careful about who we let out. The man or woman involved is going to have to prove to us that they're worthy of trust."

The measure, which passed the Senate Thursday and was sent back to the House with a minor amendment, provides for furloughs to visit critically ill relatives, attend funerals, seek special medical care not available at the institutions, or to inverview for jobs prior to release.

Miller said more than half the states have some sort of furlough program already in operation and experience has shown it works well and the inmates appreciate the privilege and do not abuse it.

Less than one out of 100 leaves granted in most states result in efforts to escape.

"It is an important morale factor," Miller said, "for the prisoner to know that if a family crisis develops he can be released if his behavior warrants."

Miller noted that there is a built-in security factor in the attitude of inmates themselves. If a prisoner flees while on leave or doesn't come back on time, he knows he will be jeopardizing the chances of his fellow inmates in benefitting from the privilage, he said.

"That in itself may be a better deterrent to abuse than conviction of a felonious escape charge," Miller said.

Currenly the best an inmate can hope for if a close relative becomes critically ill is a long distance phone call. The corrections department has neither the funds nor the personnel to send guards along with an inmate to visit sick relatives or attend a funeral.

Miller said the bill under consideration is "humane and fair."

He said he had no objection to a Senate amendment which would require corrections officials to notify local law enforcement authorities, circuit judges and prosecutors when an inmate was soon to be granted leave.

"We do much the same thing now," Miller said. "We often advise them (the inmates) when they are paroled and return to their home communities that it is a pretty good idea to contact local autorities and let them know that they plan to lead decent, constructive lives."

In some cases, Miller said, he has personally advised parolees to contact the victim of the crime and pledge restitution or reparation.

In the discussion of the Senate amendment, senators pointed out that perhaps an inmate made threats against law enforcement officials or witnesses at the time of conviction, and that these people should be warned in advance.

"I can see why there might be some apprehension about this," Miller said. "But sometimes those threats are made under emotional strain and are not really meant.

"Certainly, if we have any reason to think that an inmate might be bent on vengeance, we're simply not going to grant him leave."

Each application for furlough will be screened carefully and considered on an individual basis, Miller said. The nature of the crime will, in some cases, have a direct bearing on the decision.

"We're not going to turn loose drug addicts or child molesters or people who would constitute a threat to the safety or security of the public," he said.

On the other hand, he said, a convict serving a term for murder might qualify for furlough, depending upon the stage of his sentence, his record and his conduct.

The warden and superintendents of the various institutions will set up screening committees to consider each application, and Miller said he would reserve the final decision based on their recommendation.

Properly used, Miller said, the furlough plan can be an effective rehabilitation tool, particularly for young inmates with families.

The chance to renew family ties with wives and children occasionally can go a long way toward preparing a man for his freedom once his sentence has been served, he said.

Miller said he is already preparing guidelines for the program if and when it becomes law. They will closely follow the successful policies used in other states.

FBI Informer Says $50,000 Reward Request Rejected

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — FBI informer Boyd Douglas Jr. acknowledged today he asked the government for a tax-free $50,000 reward for evidence he obtained to prosecute antiwar priest Philip Berrigan and six others on conspiracy charges. He said his request was turned down.

Douglas, testifying at the Harrisburg Seven conspiracy trial, said an FBI agent told him "If my thoughts were along those lines I should forget about it."

The seven are accused of conspiring to kidnap presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger.

Douglas, 31, is the government's key witness and was beginning his second week on the stand. He said he received only $1,500 for a tip that led to arrests in a Rochester, N.Y., draft board break-in in September 1970.

He added he also received $200 in expense money.

The testimony came in response to questions from chief prosecutor William Lynch.

Douglas, who had been serving time in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, was paroled in December 1970.

The defense has characterized Douglas as a con man and an "agent provocateur," and hopes to expose him as a liar during cross-examination that may last more than a week.

Last week the defense made public a letter Douglas wrote to an FBI agent in October-1970 requsting a minimum, tax-free $50,000 reward, plus expenses.

"This figure may sound a little high," Douglas wrote, "but considering everything I feel it is worth it to the government ... I will do all I can to help the government obtain enough evidence ...."

His letter indicates he collected some money before he was paroled in December 1970 from the Lewisburg (Pa.) Penitentiary.

About a week later he testified secretly before a federal grand jury that later indicted the defendants. Then he disappeared.

Douglas wrote his reward letter four months after he had begun to betray Berrigan, imprisoned at Lewisburg for destroying draft board files.

Douglas, at the time, was attending classes at nearby Bucknell University under a studyrelease program. Because of this part-time freedom, he said, Berrigan recruited him to smuggle letters in and out of the penitentiary.

The illegal mail delivery was discovered by prison officials and Douglas agreed to cooperate with the FBI.

Flood Deaths Top 100

MAN, W. Va. (AP) — The toll of known dead from the Feb. 26 flood in Buffalo Creek Hollow has risen to 103 and authorities say some 100 other persons are still missing.

Ten more bodies were found Sunday as National Guardsmen used heavy equipment to comb the wreckage of 16 coal camps which were in the path of a torrent of water released when a dam of coal mine wastes broke.

Guard officers estimated they have checked more than 70 per cent of the debris left in the wake of the flood down the 17mile valley, but they declined to predict when the job will be completed.

Two area residents will be among the first graduating class at the Mid- America Nazarene College in Olathe, Kan., May 15. The college opened four years ago. # Singing Guitarist Needs Talking To

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to the letter from the man who said everyone would be better off if we didn't try to save people who attempt suicide. You, Ann Landers called him a dingbat and compared him with Hitler. Well, I guess that makes me a dingbat and a Hitler, too. Furthermore, if you poll the medical personnel in the hospitals, you'll find that the majority are with me, not you.

I work in an emergency room of a large hospital. We see a lot of people who have tried to kill themselves in the head, or slash themselves with a razor. Most of them don't die. We spend a lot time, energy, and money saving those nuts.

Emergency rooms have enough patients --- good people who want to live. Suicidal creeps cut into the quality of care for the emergency patients. In my opinion the law should be changed. Would-be suicides should be given another dose of the same stuff they took before they came in. There are too many people in this world as it is. Why save a person who places no value on his life? Whenever I read about a cop or a fireman who risked his neck crawling out on a window ledge to rescue some crook who threatens to jump, I do a slow burn. Screwy people just louse up the environment. Who needs 'em? ---Hitler's Buddy. Dear Hitler: You work in a hospital, Buddy? You should be working in a morgue where it wouldn't matter whether or not you deemed the people worth saving. Unfortunately, twisted characters like you CAN make a difference. A guy who lines himself up with Hitler has a mind that is not only closed but nailed shut. I won't waste good advice on you, Buddy.

Dear Ann Landers: My 26-year-old brother wants to marry a girl who is 15. She is a long way from being ready for marriage. My brother has asked me to find out the answer to the following questions. I told him I would try. (1) Is there any state where a girl of 15 can get married? (2) If a girl gets pregnant do her parents have to sign for her? (3) If a man marries a girl who is not of legal age against her parents' wishes, will be be put in jail? (4) If they don't get married but just travel together, is this against the law?

Thank you for your help. AS you can see, it's a mess. —— Brother Of A Nut.

Dear Brother: You thanked me too soon. I'm not going to give you much help. State laws vary and I'm no lawyer. Your nutty brother should see both a doctor and a lawyer, and that girl needs some help, too.

Dear Ann Landers: A gal I know thinks she can play the guitar. She also thinks she's a composer. Worse yet, she's under the impression that she can sing. Put these three mistaken notions together and what do you have? A fourth-rate guitar player with a lousy voice singing some crummy songs. She lugs her guitar to every party. Without anybody asking, she takes the guitar out and starts to sing. If everyone doesn't stop talking and listen she is insulted. Last night she put the dead hand on a great evening. Several people slipped out during her "concert." The party was at my place. I'm burned. Any suggestions? — No Peach In Georgia.

Dear N.P.: If you're a male, talk to her like a Dutch uncle. If you're female, talk to her like a Dutch aunt. She needs to be told.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Easy Way to 'Launder' Bric-a-brac and China

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—After a remodeling and redecorating job I was faced with those pieces of bric-a-brac, china, etc. that had to be washed before they were returned to the shelves, walls, etc. I put rubber mats in the bathtub and covered them with bath towels to "cushion" the bottom of the tub. The required amount of hot water and liquid detergent were put in the tub and then I set the plates, etc., in it. In a few minutes I gave each piece a swish here and there with a long-handled brush and then rinsed them in the wash basin. Soon they were dried and put in their proper places.

Also, I find ordinary metal shower curtain hooks can be utilized as great space savers. They can be used to hang bulky, odd-shaped items in otherwise unusable space, such as putting the hook through the handle of a plastic clothes basket or over the handle on a pail and then hanging the hook on a nail, cup hook or over a coat hanger which may be placed under a shelf. These are also practical for use in the storage of appliance cords—group together and use one hanger for all. Slip nesting measuring cups or other small gadgets on such a hook and then hang it. The sweeper hose can also be slipped through a shower hook which is hung on a hook or nail on a closet door.—MRS. J. McG.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I read in the column about the lady who dyed rice to be thrown after a wedding so it matched the bridesmaid's gowns. I would like to hear of some other unique ideas that could be used for a wedding I am planning.—C. H.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the furniture and appliance manufacturers who make so many things just high enough off the floor so plenty of dust lands under them but not high enough to sweep under. I do wish they would build pieces up so they could be swept under or else rest flat on the floor. I have torn up many a broom trying to clean under such things.—HOLLIE

DEAR POLLY—My problem is every driver's problem. Yesterday a truck shot by us going in the opposite direction on the freeway. My heart almost stopped as one of the large, yellow cardboard barrels fell from his full load and came rolling toward us. Of course, my husband hit it. The front end of our new car was caved in and we were a little shaken up—all because some truck driver had a loose barrel. This isn't the only obstacle that has been found on the freeway. There have been sacks, boxes, overstuffed chairs, kid's tricycles. You name it and it is scattered here and there. If any of you had hit this blasted barrel, what would you have done, or did you ever hit anything?—MRS. H. A. S.

DEAR POLLY—One of my Pet Peeves is with the manufacturers of men's slacks and pants who put white pockets in dark pants. They show especially when the man is seated and this really looks horrible.—ORPHA

Cape Central Seeks 'L' Crown

Three St. Louis high school basketball powers are among five teams returning to the Class L state tournament after winning regionals over the weekend.

Northwest, McCluer and Kirkwood join with Raytown South and Sedalia for repeat trips into the sweet state tournament bracket. None of the five made it into last season's finals that saw Vashion place first with a 78-72 victory over Kansas City Paseo. KC Rockhurst finished third with an 80-50 victory Over DeSoto.

Raytown South was the only member to get past first round play last season before losing to Paseo, 57-50, in the quarterfinals.

Kirkwood is the only undefeated team heading into tonight's first round action at eight sites throughout the state.

Friday night at Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau Central rallied in the fourth quarter to pull away from a persky Charleston squad and into a first round state game at Cape Girardeau's Houck field house Monday against Farmington.

Dick Buxton and Hunter Stiegemeyer paced the Bengals into the state tournament with 26 and 19 point efforts. Alford Gordon had 19, Alvin Pierce 16 and Albri Cassell 14 to pace the Bluejays effort.

Charleston trailed only 50-47 going into the fourth quarter after holding a 14-10 lead in the first period, but couldn't match the Tigers rebounding strength.

The Bengals carry a 26-3 season record into tonight's 7:30 match with the leadbelt winner, Farmington Knights. The winner advances into a quarterfinal round match Wednesday at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis against tonight's Augustinian - St. Louis Sumner game.

Cassio, who spent most of his life as a tailor in Rahway, N.J., and still lives there, never won an ABC tournament but his average for 29 years is 196.

MU Hosts Leader Tuesday

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The storm warnings are up for Tuesday night in the Big Eight Conference basketball race.

Kansas State's front running Wildcats move into Missouri, where the Tigers, a game behind, hope to square things.

If the Wildcats win, it's all over. If the 19th-ranked Tigers win, the race will be deadlocked and won't be decided until Saturday when both teams play at home, Missouri against Oklahoma and Kansas State against Nebraska.

Two games are scheduled tonight. Nebraska goes to Iowa State, 4-9, and Kansas invades Oklahoma, 8-4, where the host Sooners must win or forget their slim chances for a tie for the top spot.

Kansas State will go into the showdown with Missouri with a league record of 10 triumphs, seven of them in succession, and two losses. The Tigers are 9-3.

The two leaders matched each other with victories Saturday. The Wildcats disposed of Colorado 73-55 in a regionally televised afternoon contest at Manhattan, Kan.

Missouri, well aware of Kansas State's afternoon success, cut down stubborn Nebraska in a night clash at Lincoln, Neb., 61-54.

Oklahoma State knocked off Kansas 76-72 in Saturday night's only other game.

Colorado Coach Cox Walseth contributed to the Wildcats' victory in no uncertain terms. He charged onto the floor after Lon Kruger was fouled and given credit for a basket on a goalatending infraction.

State Champs Crowned

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montgomery County and Advance reigned today as Missouri high school basketball champions in their respective divisions.

Montgomery won its Class M title Saturday night at Columbia by whipping the St. Pius X Warriors 68-48. Essex Richmond took third by beating Willard 66-64.

Advance grabbed the Class S crown by turning back Morrisville 69-61 at Rolla. Northeast - Nodaway tripped North Harrison 69-59 for consolation honors.

Montgomery County buried St. Pius in the first half, shooting its way to a 36-26 intermission advantage and had no trouble the rest of the way.

Tony Marteen scored five straight points in the third quarter to give the victorious Wildcats a 16-point bulge. He finished with 22 points. Mark Capra, a freshman, paced the Warriors with 13.

Advance had to come from behind late in the first half to get even at 32-32 in the close game with Morrisville. It was tied again at 53-53 with 4:08 left.

Richard Hitt and Richie Walker took charge at that point and shot Advance to victory. Each finished with 22 points, the same number scored by Morrisville's Randy Acuff.

Richland Places Third

ST. PIUS' Dwight Sutphin (42) seems to be shying away from the basketball because of an artist conception of an explosive during a Friday night semifinal round game of the Class M state tournament at Brewer field house in Columbia, but really the big foward watches the ball because Richland's John Sims (43) slapped the ball away. St. Pius placed second in the state and used its defensive rebounding to move past the Rebels.

By RON JAYNES
Standard Sports Editor

COLUMBIA — Southeast Missouri basketball power, the Richland Rebels, led for only 26 seconds in the consolation game of the Class M state high school basketball tournament Saturday night but that was all they needed to take home the third place prize and end their season with a 31-2 record.

Willard, attacking the tall and talented bootheel Rebels in the same manner that Kansas City St. Pius did in Friday's semifinal match that left the events winningest team with a 75-67 defeat, led for 31 minutes and 34 seconds before falling prey to a late game Reb charge that gave them a 66-64 verdict.

Defenses, which the mighty RHS Rebels seemed to solve with ease through the regular season and two games into the state tournament, became a big obstical for coach Larry Joplin's cagers in the weekend finals at Brewer Field house and caused them their first state title when St. Pius used an array of defenses to post a 76-67 win in Friday's semifinals and Willard threw the same junk at the Gray Ridge-Essex bunch in the consolation match and almost pulled the same trick.

The highly taunted Richland Rebel offense was throttled in both weekend contests by teams that would have been lucky to win 20 games this season against such SEMO clubs as Senath-Hornersville, Caruthersville, Hayti and Lilbourn. But the duo kept the pressure on the top rated Rebs from the opening tip with full court presses and then switched up when they got down court to keep the Bootheel cagers guessing what was next instead of how to solve the problem.

Rated as the state's top class M high school basketball team by two statewide poll's going into the weekend finals, Richland looked far from their showings on the SEMO hardwoods and didn't play anywhere near their potential except for a late game rush in Friday's semifinals and repeated the feat in the consolitation match.

Coach Bill Gould's Tigers roared into a 7-0 lead before the Rebs cashed their first score of the evening with 5:30 left in the opening period and trailed by as much as 10 points through the match before a late game Reb press pushed them into a 20-9 fourth period advantage and into their third place finish.

Big John Sims provided the spark to life the Rebs into the win, scoring 10 points in the final eight minutes of action. The towering 6-foot-6 center played like a guard through the final quarter, stealing the ball and driving downcourt for fast break layups. He tied the score with 1:40 left and then grabbed off two steals, heaving both times Norman Cole who drew fouls and clamly iced the game with free throws with 26 and one seconds left.

As the fourth quarter began, Richland came out with a scrappy full-court press to counter the Cats' aggressive tactics and shotdown the Tigers 55-46 lead. The Rebs were postered successfully by their smaller opponents for three quarters before settling down and posting their 31st win of the season two defeats.

quarter and was forced to the bench for the remainder of the game. Keith Sherman replaced Rhodes and drew the praises of coach Cookson. "Keith came off the bench and did an outstanding job," the coach emphasized.

Morrisville never said die and kept battling back, hitting jump shots from around the free throw circle and only trailed by two, 47-47 at the start of the last eight minutes of the game.

Richard Hitt, who scored 15 of his 22 points in the first half, hit two straight buckets to jump his Hornets out in front 51-47 with 6:46 left in the game.

With 5:51 left in the game the Hornets threw the ball into the waiting hands of Morrisville players trying to fast break down the court and Morrisville took quick advantage of the costly mistakes and tied the score 51-51.

Richard Hitt drew his fourth foul with 5:08 left and things began to look very gloomy for all Hornet fans concerned. The game see-sawed back and forth until Advance was able to open up a 59-55 edge with 2:55 left and walker raced down court for the clincer. Advance put on a shooting show in the last two minutes of the game missing only one of eight attempts at the basket.

Richie Walker, another all state candidate for the Hornets should be cited for his fine performance in the tournament as he set up the plays and played a great defense from his guard position. Richie scored 22 points in the championship game to tie Hitt for scoring honors.

Advance placed second in the 1957 state championship game, losing to Kansas City Pembroke 50-49.

The Hornets will lose only two players, Richard Hitt and Richie Walker this season so we can look for Advance to make a great attempt to defend their 1971-72 class S title next season.

ADVANCE STATE CHAMPS

By BILL HARRISON
Standard Sportswriter

ROLLA, Mo. — With Advance leading 59-55 Richie Walker hit a fast break layup with 2:10 left in the game and the chants "we're number one," "we're number one," began to ring out from the student cheering section of the Hornets and all the Advance followers broke out with cheers of happiness as coach Carroll Cookson's great basketball team was finally out of danger and eventually won the Missouri state class S championship from Morrisville 69-61 to make all the fans in the southeast Missouri area very proud of their accomplishments.

The Hornets and coach Cookson have something that all schools and coaches dream about and thats a state championship trophy. To win this trophy was quite an accomplishment as most schools never are able to rise to the top of their class and claim the honor of being number one and only a few can lay hold to it even once in their life time.

It's no surprise that coach Cookson was so emotionally charged after the game that all he could say to this reporter in a way of comment was "Oh boy!"

When asked how he thought his team played in the game the Hornet coach made the understatement of the year as he said, "It was a real fine performance."

In case anyone in the area who has seen Advance play didn't recognize their style of run and shoot basketball your eyes might be opened if you knew that Carroll Cookson was a junior in high school at Puxico in 1950-51 when the famed Indians beat Waynesville 42-38 for the 40th win of the season against no losses for the state championship of class B. Coach Cookson was a starter on the 51-52 Indians team which won their second straight class B championship from Shelbyville 85-38 20 years ago. Puxico had a 38-2 record that year and the two losses came by one point in the last seconds of each game. Puxico came back to defeat the same teams later in the year by 25 points apiece. Norm Stewart, head coach at the University of Missouri was the center and high scorer for the Shelbyville team.

Quickness, speed, ball handling, and fine shooting proved to be the deciding factor in the Hornets drive to the state championship.

Advance had no easy time against a fine Morrisville team. The Hornets were faced with a very effective zone defense and were unable to work the ball inside so were forced to take the 20 foot shots.

Morrisville displayed fine shooting against the Advance zone defense and jumped out in front 16-10 with 37 seconds left in the intital period as Morrisville blocked out very well under Advance's basket and allowed the Hornets only one shot at a time. Morrisville led 16-13 after the first period of play.

Fouls began to play an important part in the game as with 4:49 left in the second quarter three Hornet players had picked up two fouls apiece. Richard Hitt began to display why he's all state material as he came out in the second quarter and hit three straight 20 footers from his favorite spot in the corner and Advance led for the first time 19-18 with 6:30 left in the first half.

John Rhodes, who had a big night against North Harrison Friday night. was held down by Morrisville and picked up his third personal with 4:29 left in the first half.

The two teams played the type game that was befitting to a championship match as they exchanged baskets the rest of the second quarter and ended the first half deadlocked at 32-32.

Morrisville, which many thought was a slow moving team, kept pace with the Hornets until two minutes were left in the fourth quarter and almost completely snuffed out the fastbreak tactics of Advance. The Hornets did miss a couple of layup opportunities.

Advance, after the two teams swapped buckets for the first few minutes of the third period, enjoyed their biggest lead of the game, 42-38 with 3:50 left in the period. John Rhodes picked up his fourth foul with 3:09 remaining in the third

MARCH 4, 1972 will be a long remembered date in the history of Advance high school ... That's the date the Hornets basketball team were crowned Missouri state Class S champions. At left a happy AHS fan rushes in to congratulate coach Carroll Cookson after his team's accomplishment Saturday night. At right, one of three juniors who will return next season, Terry Wills (42) goes up for a shot in the title game against Mirrisville. The Hornets swept to the title behind a 69-61 win and the leadership of the teams only two seniors, Richie Walker and Richard Hitt.

State Tournament Exciting Experience

By BILL HARRISON

If you've never been to a state basketball tournament it's hard to explain the happy mood everyone gets into, it's sort of like a holiday, especially if the team that you are rooting for is winning. I have been with the Advance Hornets for the finals of the state class S tourney and everyone here at Rolla seems to be from Advance, and they give this town a gay mood.

It's not very often that a high school basketball team gets a chance to become the number one team in their class in the entire state but the last two weeks have belonged to the Hornets and their jubilant followers from Advance.

We have been listening to the comments of many fans and the feeling seems to be unanimous that the best team the Hornets faced was Wright City in the quarter- finals at New Haven.

The fast moving, sharp shooting Hornets have excited all the people in town that have been taking in the finals.

If you wonder what the fans and players do in the daytime while waiting for the big game to begin we can tell you a little about that as this has been the first time I have witnessed the finals of a state tournament myself.

After Advance won the semi- final game from North Harrison all the kids that followed the Hornets up here were busy visiting until late in the night. Many running and playing around the Motels.

On Saturday before the championship game just about everyone went down town to shop around to buy souvenirs and gifts for the folks down home. We saw some of the Advance ball players in a store where my wife and I were browsing around. While we were eating breakfast we overheard a man say that a boy jumped into the motel swimming pool the night before and believe me that was some act because it was very, very cold here.

Most fans sit around discussing basketball in general and many spend a lot of time eating. One fan made the remark to a friend in the motel restaurant that he was "trying to buy the place," since he had spent so much time and money there in two days.

After the Hornets had won the Championship game on Saturday night many of their followers, parents and friends of the players, had a celebration get together in the Holiday Inn restaurants and presented Coach Cookson and his team a victory cake.

We want to congratulate the Advance team and coaching staff on their victory and maybe we can do the same thing next year. All you coaches and players in southeast Missouri try very hard to make the state finals because as any one who witnessed the events at Rolla this past weekend will testify that it can be a lot of fun and a long cherished memory.

Trade Talk In Spring Drills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Texas couldn't hold Denny McLain, what aobut big Frank Howard?

The Texas Rangers dealt McLain to Oakland over the weekend for two minor league pitchers—Don Stanhouse and Jim Panther—and Manager Ted Williams said Sunday that slugger Howard, a stubborn holdout, is also available in a trade "that we could live with."

Since the Boston Red Sox were visiting the Rangers' Pompano Beach, Fla., training camp for an exhibition baseball game, Williams proposed a four-for-one swap with the Bosox.

"What will they give for the big guy?" Williams asked. "I'd go for a four-for-one deal, but it would have to be something we could live with. Put down the names of 10 players from the 40-man roster and we could talk."

Williams wasn't thinking about the Boston stars. Instead, he mentioned people like relievers Sparky Lyle and Bill Lee, utility infielder John Kennedy and rookies Ben Ogilvie and Cecil Cooper.

However, Boston manager Eddie Kasko said he definitely opposed giving four players for Howard, even though the thought of the big fellow aiming at Fenway Park's friendly left field fence is enough to give opposing hurlers even more nightmares.

After the prospect of a Howard trade was kicked around, the Rangers were held to two hits by Ray Culp and Gary Peters and dropped a 3-1 rainshortened 6½-inning decision to the Red Sox.

Elsewhere on the slim exhibition schedule, Minnesota nipped Detroit 2-1 on Steve Brye's bases-loaded single, the Chicago White Sox shaded the New York Yankees 1-0 on rookie Pete Varney's sixth-inning homer just before rain halted the contest and the San Diego Padres walloped Mexico's Red Devils 11-2. The Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets were rained out.

The major news, however, was made off the field.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported that the Indians have been sold to Nick Mileti, who owns the Cleveland Arena, the Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association and the Barons of the American Hockey League.

Mileti said he had no comment "at this time" but it is known that he is opposed to moving the team out of Cleveland or sharing it with another city.

The Plain Dealer quoted Gabe Paul, president of the club—Vernon Stouffer is the owner—as saying: "I'm not saying anything. I'm not denying it and I'm not confirming it. I am not talking."

However, American League owners, who must approve the sale, are expected to meet in Sarasota, Fla., Wednesday with Stouffer and Mileti in attendance.

On the contract front, Baltimore signed first baseman Boog Powell for an estimated $90,000 leaving outfielder Merv Rettenmund the only unsigned Oriole.

Outfielder Willie Montanez came to terms with the Philadelphia Phillies for a reported $28,000. He made $15,000 last year when he was runner-up for National League Rookie of the Year honors.

But the St. Louis Cardinals were unable to reach an agreement with Joe Torre, the NL's most valuable player and Torre said he doesn't think the club is offering him a fair raise. Torre made an estimated $110,000 in 1971 when he batted .363 and drove home 137 runs. He is asking $150,000 and the Cards have offered $130,000.

Term Paper Market Challenged

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A move is under way in a small but growing number of states to curb what is becoming a successful service industry in college towns from the Ivy League to the Pacific Coast—merchandising term papers on the open market.

In the California Legislature, the New York courts and the Massachusetts attorney general's office, public officials backed or goaded by college authorities are moving against young entrepreneurs who are getting rich by churning out other people's homework.

Ever since a pair of pioneering brothers launched a Boston term paper factory 18 months ago and extended its operations to 49 other branches nationwide, more than 100,000 papers have been sold to students and the number of competing firms is proliferating.

"I am helping students overcome the busy work and repetition and wasted time of going from shelf to shelf and page to page doing term papers in which no learning is involved," says Ward Warren, 23, who with his brother, Kenneth, 27, founded Termpaper Research Unlimited Inc.

The brothers say they did $1.8 million worth of business last year.

Termpapers Unlimited and the others advertise openly in campus newspapers—"Are you cramped for time? Let us help you," reads one ad—and reach students who pay from $2 to $6 a page for documented research on topics as varied as Aztec social structure to Zambian foreign policy.

The papers are composed by ghostwriters, including moonlighting faculty members, graduate students and technical writers—many with M.A. and Ph. D. degrees—who sign agreements relinquishing their rights to their works.

"We've given these trained people a better way to make money and the students have access to a clearing house for information," said Ed Whalen, 29, a former English instructor who is vice president and chief editor for Creative Communications Consultants in Urbana, Ill.

The ghostwriters get anywhere from $2 to $5 a page for their products.

This view—and the practice of peddling term papers—is the target of a measure introduced by California Assemblyman Jim Keysor that would make it a misdemeanor to sell term papers to students in higher education institutions.

"This bill is against the sellers and not against students," said Keysor, a Granada Hills Democrat. "I think getting it passed could be a little tough because people will argue you can't legislate morality."

The reaction of educators and administrators to the term paper business has been mixed, ranging from violent opposition to philosphical re-evaluation of the efficacy of term papers.

Harvard Dean of Students Archie Epps calls the term paper companies "a blot on the conscience of American institutions of higher learning" and an official at Southern Illinois University said the firms reflect "a breakdown in the relationship between faculty and students."

On the other hand, David J. Carson, dean of students at Babson College in Massachusetts, Ward Warren's alma mater, sees the term paper companies as a spur to new thinking.

"Perhaps there will be some serious and beneficial gains out of all this if it causes some reevaluation of the whole process of which term papers are a part," he said.

Ward Warren said students seem to have no second thoughts about buying a term paper. He told a story of a freshman who bought and submitted as his own work a fivepage paper entitled, "Why I wouldn't Use a Professional Term Paper Writing Service."

Not every student is a potential customer, Warren said, and Termpapers Unlimited occasionally advises would-be clients to do the work themselves if the paper is a short one.

Would he himself purchase a term paper prepared by a commercial service? Warren was asked.

Jack Anderson Special

Note to Editors:

Because of demands for the full text of the ITT memorandum on which the Tuesday and Thursday columns are based, we are releasing the following to Jack Anderson client papers for use Tuesday and thereafter.

The memo is on the stationery of ITT's Washington office and is dated June 25, 1971. It reads:

"PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL

"To: W.R. Merriam

"From: D.D. Beard (initialed)

"Subject: San Diego Convention

"I just had a long talk with EJG I'm so sorry that we got that call from the White House. I thought you and I had agreed very thoroughly that under no circumstances would anyone in this office discuss with anyone our participation in the Convention, including me. Other than permitting John Mitchel , Ed Reinecke, Bob Haldeman and Nixon (besides Wilson, of course) no one has known from whom that 400 thousand committment had come. You can't imagine how many queries I've had from "friends" about this situation and I have in each and every case denied knowledge of any kind. It would be wise for all of us here to continue to do that, regardless of from whom any questions come; White House or whoever. John Mitchell has certainly kept it on the higher level only, we should be able to do the same.

"I was afraid the discussion about the three hundred /four hundred thousand committment would come up soon. If you remember, I suggested that we all stay out of that, other than the fact that I told you I had heard Hal up the original amount.

"Now I understand from Ned that both he and you are upset about the decision to make it four hundred in services. Believe me, this is not what Hal said. Just after I talked with Ned, Wilson called me, to report on his meeting with Hal. Hal at no time told Wilson that our donation would be in services ONLY. In fact, quite the contrary. There would be very little cash involved, but certainly some. I am convinced , because of several conversations with Louie re Mitchell, that our noble committment has gone a long way toward our negotiations on the mergers eventually coming out as Hal wants them. Certainly the President has told Mitchell to see that things are worked out fairly. It is still only McLaren's mickey-mouse we are suffering.

"We all know Hal and his big mouth: But this is one time he cannot tell you and Ned one thing and Wilson (and me) another!

"I hope, dear Bill, that all of this can be reconciled -- between Hal and Wilson -- if all of us in this office remain totally ignorant of any committment ITT has made to anyone. If it gets too much publicity, you can believe our negotiations with Justice will wind up shot down. Mitchell is definitely helping us, but cannot let it be known. Please destory this, huh?

Pulling Up Stakes

CHANGE IN THE WIND. By Jean and Robert Hersey. Scribners. $6.95.

Robert (he was in advertising) and Jean (she has written several books on gardening and country living) retired five years ago, remaining in their longtime home in Weston, Conn., which is within commuting distance of New York City.

They collaborated on "These Rich Years," published in 1969, to describe their adjustment to retirement — especially the psychological orientation to a new way of life.

This book is a sequel, or companion volume. If you missed the earlier book it doesn't matter too much, as this one is self-contained.

It developed that the Herseys found the cold winters were bothering them; each had minor surgery, which slowed them down for a while; they began to wonder if they could cope with the house and garden much longer. Some city friends moved into a posh retirement village nearby, and almost enticed the Herseys into joining them. Then came a trip to Tryon, N.C., which Robert and Jean had visited many times, and they saw a house they liked. Almost simultaneously a real estate agent had a prospective buyer for the Weston home.

So mainly this is a chronicle of how the Herseys pulled up stakes and settled down again in a warmer climate. There was an interval of several months while changes were being made in the Tryon house, giving them a chance to organize their move. A crisis arose after they had moved, but they weathered that and settled down for good.

The Herseys write well (they take turns writing chapters) and both of them are sensitive to the pleasures of nature. Their story is pleasant reading, whether you are thinking about retirement or not.

Danforth Charges Legislature

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth charged Thursday the Missouri Legislature "has consistently obstructed good law enforcement and has fought improvement in the criminal justice system."

He said the legislature has fallen down on its job and instead of trying to improve criminal justice has resorted to destructive attacks on the courts.

In a speech prepared for a seminar on criminal justice at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Danforth said people in the criminal justice system have come to "realize that we will have no real help from the General Assembly in our efforts."

While the crime problem has been increasing, he said, the legislature seems to have become less interested in doing anything about it.

What's The Law

Auto Loss Is Covered

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As it turned out, Ralph's smile was as phony as his check. And, when the check finally stopped bouncing, careless Horace filed a claim to collect for his loss under an insurance policy that covered his car against "direct and accidental loss" and "loss caused by other than collision."

"You've got it all wrong," he was told. "Nothing happened to your car, only to you. You were hoodwinked out of your automobile. That's got nothing to do with your policy."

"My name isn't Mr. Webster," was Horace's answer. "Consequently, I accept words for what they seem to mean. And,since your policy covered me against 'direct or accidental loss.' I'm entitled to collect. For, obviously, my car has been lost to me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit hoodwinked Horace to collect for the loss of his car?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that an insurance policy, if possible, will be construed so as to furnish protection and not to defeat it. In this case, noted the judge, to receive a bogus check in payment for a car is both a "direct and accidental loss" of the car. To part with a car as the result of chicanery, he noted, is as direct a loss as can be achieved. And to be paid with a bogus check is unexpected and, therefore, an accident. (Based upon a 1968 Kansas City Court of Appeals Decision)

Women's Lib Movement Has Hollywood Impact

NEW YORK (AP) — Like it or hate it, the women's liberation movement has really had an impact in Hollywood: Three pilot films were broadcast on the three major networks over the weekend, and each proposed a series for a woman star.

One featured a woman doctor, one cast a woman as a private eye, and the third was built around a woman lawyer. Until now, these jobs have been considered men's work.

Jayne Wyman turned up Sunday night in a pilot on NBC's "The Bold Ones," She played, very attractively, a pediatrician treating a teen-age boy with bleeding ulcers. The hour came in the standard TV-doctor-show mold—Dr. Amanda Fallon even had a younger (male) assistant.

As usual in TV fiction, the good, concerned doctor was able to devote most of her time to one patient. She uncovered the cause of the boy's illness and added a wise little lecture on human relations. The viewer who finds "Marcus Welby, M.D." soothing and leans on the "Medical Center" team, will undoubtedly find "Amanda Fallon, M.D." a bright spot on a schedule—if it makes it.

Saturday night's pilot, "A Very Missing Person," on ABC was vaguely based on a fairly recent Stuart Palmer book. It was a busy story built around dropouts and con men and really didn't make very much sense.

The big problem was trying to fit Eve Arden into the character of Hildegard Withers, the retired school teacher who solves murders for fun. There was constant reference to Miss Withers' advanced age—and Miss Arden did not look in the least like a little old spinster lady. Also her crisp decisive way with a line, a technique that works well for her in comedy, added an aggressive, abrasive note, possibly because the lines were not worthy of the technique.

Susan Hayward's pilot Friday night on CBS, "Heat of Anger," is a natural for conversion into a courtroom series. It was, once again, an overt switch on a familiar format—the experienced older attorney, this time a woman, and the younger, fiery aide played by James Stacey.

The plot revolved around a rich builder charged with murdering one of his high steel workers, a married man who was having an affair with the builder's 18-year-old daughter.

In terms of slick production and good entertainment, the best effort of the weekend was ABC's made-for-TV film, "Fireball Forward," on Sunday night. A tough, taut story about a front-line general faced with a security leak in his division, it had some film footage from the movie "Patton" and Ben Gazzara playing the general. The results were excellent. If the producers could get enough film, it would make a good action series.

they walked with christ

by David Poling

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW

Jesus had not been well received in His home district of Nazareth. The community was divided over His teaching and many infuriated over His claims to be sent by God. Yet in neighboring Capernaum He found an eager audience and many of His future disciples would come from this congregation. One was Peter, called Simon, big in the fishing business, influential and well-known. He had been fascinated by Jesus, His authority and His persuasion. Following services one Sabbath he asked the Master to come to his home and help his mother-in-law. She was in the grip of a high fever and needed immediate attention. Jesus healed her and she responded by getting up and serving the whole family.

Two things happened here: A sick woman is made well and Simon is further persuaded that Jesus is more than a bright scholar from Nazareth. Additional revelations will affect Simon and his decision to follow Christ but a dramatic start has begun. Jesus used healing, not as a trick or feat, but to demonstrate the love and majesty of God. Nothing less would convince Simon Peter.

"Don't forget to wear your galoshes!"

Mothers always used to say things like that, and they still do. "Be careful when you cross the street," and, "Don't gulp your milk!" sound as familiar to kids today as they did a couple of generations ago.

And we think that's good. Because it's a demonstration of caring which is carried from generation to generation --- and caring is what funeral service is all about.

Nunnelee FUNERAL CHAPEL SIKESTON

Don't lose your voice!

When the person on the other end of your telephone line can't hear you, there isn't much point in talking. If the fault is ours, we want to know about it. But before you speak to us, try speaking up to the other party. If you're holding the handset below your chin, he won't hear much. But if you talk directly into the mouthpiece, your voice comes through loud and clear. Though it's only a small tip, it doesn't leave you speechless.

Nesby Held In Stabbing

CHARLESTON — Clifford Nesby, 36, Charleston, is being held in the Mississippi County jail in connection with the Saturday night death of Charles Desmute, 87, Charleston.

Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons said Nesby and Desmute were involved in an argument while in the room of Lester White on W. Pecan St. shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday.

Some 20 minutes later, Nesby started out the door and was struck across the nose with a bean knife by Desmute.

Nesby reportedly shoved Desmute outside, took the knife and struck him on top of the head. Desmute died approximately two hours later in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The body is in the Davis Funeral Home in Charleston.

Nesby was arrested by 7:15 p.m. Saturday by policeman Willis Cox. No charges have been filed.

Truck Accident Kills Man

MARSTON — Marvin L. Hickerson, 35, of route three, Portageville, was killed yesterday when his pick-up truck went off the highway and overturned at 3:50 p.m. on route EE four and a half miles west of here.

Hickerson was taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti where he died of his injuries at 6:20 p.m.

According to the highway patrol, Hickerson was driving at an excessive rate of speed at the time of the accident.

Survivors include his parents, Polk and Minnie Fisher Hickerson, route three, Portageville; two brothers Eugene Hickerson of Flint, Mich. and Jimmy Hickerson of Rockford, Ill.; and one sister Fay Hornburg of New Madrid.

Visitation is after 4 p.m. today at DeLisle Funeral Chapel in Portageville, where services will be 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the Rev. Floyd Quick of Point Pleasant officiating. Burial will be in Portageville Cemetery.

Two City Traffic Mishaps

Police reported two traffic accidents over the weekend, and both of them occurred on Saturday.

At 10:50 a.m., Judy Ann Chism, 501 S. New Madrid, backed her car into a parked City Cab in front of Barkett's Country Kitchen at the Midtowner Village shopping center.

According to police, Miss Chism failed to see the cab because of rain and fogged windows. No arrests were made.

A two- car accident at 12:49 p.m. at the intersection of Ingram and E. Malone, resulted in two women being taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital for observation.

Released following examination were Charlotte Arnold and Beatrice Crawford. The Crawford woman suffered a slight head injury.

According to police, the accident occurred when a car driven east on E. Malone by Robert Earl Jarvis, 18 Green Meadows, collided with a car driven by the Crawford woman. The Crawford car had turned onto Malone from S. Ingram. No arrests were made according to police.

Sergeant Fights Fire

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — A home bound Air Force sergeant may have averted a major forest fire early today in south central Missouri.

The highway patrol said Sgt. Emerson C. Dickson Jr., of Waynesville fought the blaze with a hand shovel and then tapped into a telephone line and alerted the patrol.

Forest service workers rushed to the scene, an area bordering the Clark National Forest in Phelps County and Fort Leonard Wood in Pulaski County. The blaze was brought under control shortly after 4 a.m. after burning out of control nearly four hours.

Dickson told the patrol he was en route home from Scott Air Force Base, Ill., when he noticed smoke near the Phelps-Pulaski county line bordering Interstate 44. He turned around because, he said, he noticed a number of homes in the area.

Dickson said he tried to alert any residents but found no one at home. He then released a number of animals that were tied or penned up in the path of the fire.

The patrol said Dickson first tried to halt the blaze by shoveling a break in its path but was unable to make any headway. He then rigged some equipment from his car and tapped into the telephone line and called Troop I headquarters at Rolla. Troopers said Dickson suffered some burns in fighting the blaze.

Draft Call Will Be 15,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending a five-month pause, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird today announced a draft call of 15,000 to be spread over April, May and June.

Laird said 5,000 young men would be called in each of those months.

This is the first draft call since October when the Pentagon issued a call of 10,000 men for the final three months of 1971.

There were no draft calls in the first quarter of 1972. The Pentagon waited to gauge the effect of new pay raises and volunteer enlistments and the Army was reduced in size to meet congressionally mandated cuts.

Addressing the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today, Laird repeated a statement he made last week that only 50,000 or fewer men would be drafted in all of 1972. About half the number called last year.

The secretary said the lower calls had been made possible by the success of the Vietnamization program and the continued withdrawal of U.S. troops from the war.

Residence Qualifications

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court took under advisement today a key question in the legal battle over residence qualifications of legislators. Taken for study was the question whether a member of the legislature may demand and get subpoenas from the House speaker without formal action of the House or a committee.

Rep. Richard Marshall, RWebster Groves, charged that he needed them in his challenge of the residence qualifications of several Democratic House members.

But Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, said he could not issue subpoenas without formal House or committee authority and certainly not blank ones which would not show who was being summoned to testify or why.

The issue turns on a section of the law that has been in the same form since 1824, three years after Missouri became a state.

Marshall first tried to test the residency qualifications of Speaker Pro Tem Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann. After the speaker refused to supply signed subpoena forms, the House Elections Committee held what turned out to be a noisy exchange between Marshall and Hickey.

Methodist Pastor Dies

The Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, 61, pastor of the First United Methodist Church since 1964, died today at 4 a.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital where he was admitted several hours earlier, suffering from severe chest pains.

Born Aug. 27, 1910, in Jackson, he was the son of the late Martin H. and Bessie Henry Wagner.

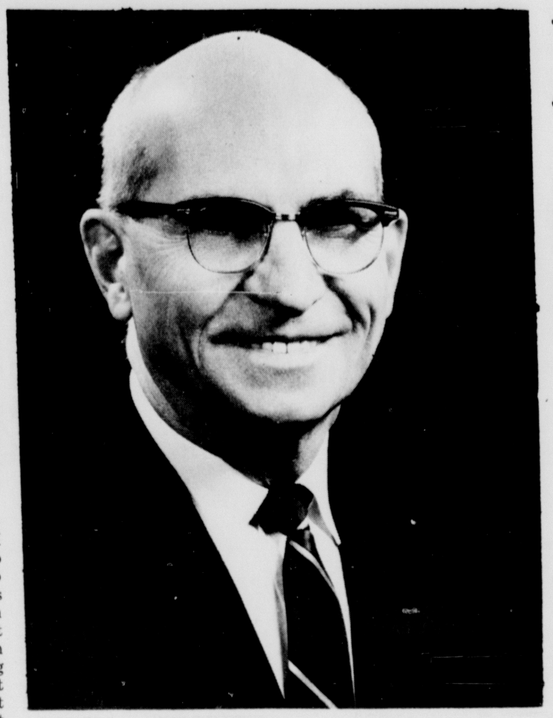
He was a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, and he received his divinity degree from Eden Theological Seminary in Webster Groves. He did graduate work at Northwestern University, the University of Michigan and the Pasadena School of Speech. He served his first pastorate at Manchester in St. Louis county.

He served as a Navy chaplain during World War II in the Pacific theater for two years. Following his return to the states, he served as Wesley Foundation instructor in English at Northwest State College in Maryville. Before entering the ministry, he had taught speech and English at Flat River Junior College in Flat River.

He served pastorates throughout Missouri and was superintendent of the Hannibal- Mexico district. He was a curator of Central Methodist College, a member of McKendree Chapel Board of Trustees, an officer of the Missouri East Conference Board of Education and a member of the committee on camps and conferences. He was also a member of the Board of Directors, Missouri United Methodist Foundation, the Board of Managers, Pastor's School and of the Wesley Foundation Board of Directors.

He is survived by his wife, Vera Seabaugh Wagner of 1015 North Kingshighway; three daughters, Mrs. Rebecca Burns, Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Patricia Corcoran, Heidelberg, Germany; and Mary Esther Wagner, Sikeston; one brother, Martin Wagner of Houston, Tex.; one sister, Martha Wagner, Kirkwood; and one granddaughter, Jennifer Lyn Corcoran of Heidelberg, Germany.

The body is at the Nunnelee Funeral Home, and arrangements are incomplete.



Rev. Joseph H. Wagner

Citizens Lobby To Start Petitions

Public Meetings

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Citizen's Lobby, a recently organized group of young Missourians, announced today it will start an initiative petition campaign soon designed to make public all meetings of public boards, committees and agencies.

In a statement, the lobby said final wording of the petition will be made public within 10 days to two weeks. A steering committee will be named to push the drive.

An initiative petition, to put a proposed law on the ballot in November, will require signatures of at least 8 per cent of the voters who cast ballots in the last election for governor, in at least seven of the 10 congressional districts.

Carl M. Wilson, Citizen's Lobby chairman, said "our public officials are not ready to remove the traditionally convenient secret voting in closed meetings. They have even developed two faces on the issue. While many have publicly condemned the executive session that allows secret voting, most of them are not ready to take realistic steps to eliminate this secrecy."

The lobby said a pending bill, sponsored by Rep. R.J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, is not satisfactory because it allows closed door sessions for certain purposes, including "discussing pending legislation, if an opening on the legislation is held beforehand."

A lobby director, Raymond A. Appleton, said "this exception is a large enough loophole to make this bill a complete waste of everybody's time. Furthermore, the bill does not eliminate the escapist alternative that all public officials have by simply voting present.

The lobby said its petition will require all legislative committees to keep a public record of each committee member's vote. No public body would work without a quorum of two-thirds of the members present.

A member would have to vote either for or against a proposal and proxies could not be voted.

Bombing Charges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Federal agents said today they are trying to come up with a concrete motive for an alleged plot to blow up three public buildings in Ste. Genevieve, Mo., about 45 miles southof St. Louis.

"It appears a really good, solid motive is lacking. I don't know why the buildings were selected," an agent of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms unit of the U.S. Treasury Department said.

Two men were charged in warrants Friday with violation of the federal antibombing laws. Federal agents said Michael A. Wolff, 19, of Festus, Mo., and Michael H. Clayton, 22 of Bloomsdale, Mo., were released on $1,000 bond each.

The two men and two other persons were arrested Thursday night as federal officers and local police raided an abandoned farm house west of Ste. Genevieve. Authoritiss said they found nine firebombs made of wine bottles in the house.

The A.T.F. agent said the other two persons were released after questioning. But he said additional arrests were possible.

The alleged plot involved the Ste. Genevieve city hall, the county courthouse and a tax office, the agent said.

A Missouri Highway Patrol spokesman said a possible motive for the reported plan to firebomb the city hall was to destroy police records.

Authorities said the courthouse might have been included because of court actions pending against persons involvediin the investigation.

Investigators made no speculation on why the tax office may hve been involved.

The A.T.F. spokesman said the U.S. Attorney's office in St. Louis had entered the investigation. He said a federal grand jury might consider the case when the investitation is completed.

Tuesday Is Last Day To Register

Tomorrow is the last day for voters to register for the municipal elections on April 4.

Voters may register at the City Administrative Building on N. New Madrid from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The law requires those registering to be a minimum of 18 years old and to have lived in the state one year, the county 60 days and the city 30 days before the date of the election.

Bills For This Week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Most Missouri legislative action is in the House this week, with important bills that were given special priority due for first round debate.

The House meets at 3 p.m., the Senate an hour later.

Among the bills lifted out of themuck by the House Rules Committee is one to open the meetings of all public bodies to the public—district, city, county and state. It is sixth down on the special calendar set up for these top priority measures.

Also on the special list are bills to lower from .15 of 1 per cent to .10 of 1 per cent the amount of alcohol in the blood to make a person legally intoxicated; a no-fault divorce bill; one to set up a state milk inspection board and one to create a fire marshal in the highway patrol.

Ready for House passage are several constitutional amendment proposals, including one to legalize lotteries by charitable and civic groups, and another to exempt personal property from taxation.

Pending when the Senate comes back to work is a new fight over a bill designed to speed up pollution control in industries. It would set up a state environmental improvement authority with power to issue revenue bonds and buy pollution control devices—or even build new plants and lease them to industries.

As introduced by Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, the pollution equipment or the plants would be exempt from taxation and so would the interest on the revenue bonds, which would be payable in 20 years. Then the industries could buy the devices or the facilities for a nominal sum.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, DHillsboro, called the bill a way to take big industry off the hook on pollution control. He wants to cut out the tax exemptions.

He said he would try to work out an amendment to do that over the weekend.

One bill ready for Senate debate would allow the transfer of incorrigibles and trouble makers from the state training schools for boys and girls to adult penal institutions.

Another would allow the board of training schools to build a maximum security facility for an estimated $4.1 million. But Rep. E.J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, the House appropriations chairman, has said the state can't afford such an expenditure this year.

Near the top of the Senate debate calendar is a bill to make Missouri's income tax laws conform with federal laws, the socalled income tax reform bill. It has set off repeated battles in the legislatures the last few years and is expected to produce more verbal fireworks when it comes up.

Committee schedules are unusually light this week, with Senate committees hearing mostly House bills and House committees considering bills already passed by the Senate.

Supreme Court To Rule On Govt. Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on the government's power to classify its documents as secret.

The test case, accepted for review next term, concerns nine reports and letters prepared for President Nixon on the Cannikin underground nuclear test.

Last October, Judges Harold Leventhal and Charles Fahy of the U.S. Circuit Court here cleared the way for the possible public release of some of the documents.

At issue is the government policy of classifying all documents in a particular file as "secret" or "top secret" if one of them contains material considered sensitive.

In other actions today, the court:

—Refused 7 to 2 to pass on whether the Vietnam war is constitutional. The majority has so held in half a dozen prior cases since 1967.

—Prevented thousands of prisoners, convicted before 1970, from challenging their convictions on grounds they had no lawyer at their preliminary hearing.

—Cleared the way for a ruling this term on whether a federal grand jury may question aides of Sen. Mike Gravel, DAlaska, about publication of the Pentagon Papers.

Ruling in a suit brought by Rep. Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii, and 32 other members of Congress, Leventhal and Fahy ordered U.S. District Court Judge George Hart Jr. to examine the Cannikin papers and determine which of them "are separable from the secret remainder."

The Justice Department said in appealing that this "judicial inquiry into matters which are peculiarly within the province of the executive" is inconsistent with provisions of the Freedom of Information Act of 1970.

That law generally makes government records available to the public, but has several exceptions, including material the executive branch finds should be kept secret "in the interest of the national defense or foreign policy."

The reports on Cannikin were compiled by a committee headed by John N. Irwin II, the undersecretary of State. The committee was established in 1969 by Nixon to advise him. Cannikin was carried out at Amchitka Island in Alaska last Nov. 6.

SHIRLEY LAMBERT of Kennett receives the traditional school of nursing pin from Mrs. Clare Eisenbach, Supervisor of Health Occupations. A total of thirty- eight received Licensed Practical Nursing degrees at the tenth annual graduation Sunday afternoon at the Sikeston High school Cafetorium.

City Council Meets Tonight

The Sikeston City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the City Administrative Building on N. New Madrid.

The agenda for tonight's meeting was not complete at press time, but two items coming before the council will be a resolution expressing the city's appreciation of the work of Ira Keller, who recently resigned as chairman of the planning and zoning commission, and an ordinance on the resubdivision of block five of the Clayton-Heights.

U.S. Planes Bomb

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes attacked two more antiaircraft batteries in North Vietnam Sunday, and B52 heavy bombers stepped up their raids in neighboring Laos, the U.S. Command reported.

It was the fifth successive day of raids in North Vietnam and brought the year's total of strikes there to 80 so far.

The command said U.S. Navy fighter escorts bombed antiaircraft guns in the Ha Tinh region 96 and 106 miles north of the demilitarized zone after they fired on U.S. reconnaissance planes. Results of the strikes were not known, but there was no damage to the American planes, the command said.

The U.S. Command reported a total of 11 such strikes in the four previous days and said the targets were all antiaircraft defenses. Tpe North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry in two statements charged that many of the strikes were in populated areas and killed or wounded many civilians.

Meanwhile, the focus of the B52 bombing campaign shifted from South Vietnam back to supply routes in Laos and Cambodia.

Although the U.S. Command does not disclose targets of B52 raids outside of South Vietnam, the objectives were believed to be the North Vietnamese buildups which U.S. sources said are continuing along the western side of the central highlands and farther north along the border.

A brigade of up to 5,000 South Vietnamese paratroopers moved from Saigon to Pleiku, in the highlands, during the weekend to reinforce government forces in the region.

The South Vietnamese Command reported scattered, small-scale ground action Sunday and early today, with 39 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed and two captured, and government casualties of six dead and 15 wounded.

An explosion in a river convoy 10 miles east of Saigon Sunday morning sank three barges loaded with 300 tons of ammunition and damaged two escort vessels. Three South Vietnamese were reported missing and six injured.

Enemy gunners fired three rockets into the Cam Ranh Air Base on the coast 200 miles northeast of Saigon, wounding one American and damaging one building, the U.S. Command said. It was the first rocket attack on the Cam Ranh base since Jan. 16.

In the political-diplomatic sphere, U.S. Asst. Secretary of State Marshall Green met for two hours with President Nguyen Van Thieu and told him that American officials held no meetings with North Vietnamese officials in Peking during President Nixon's visit, South Vietnamese officials reported. They said Green also assured Thieu no private arrangements concerning the Vietnam war were made between Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai.

There had been reports prior to Nixon's visit to China that the North Vietnamese politburo member who negotiated with Henry Kissinger in Paris, Le Duc Tho, might be in Peking when Nixon and Kissinger were.

City Will Host Special Olympics

The first Sikeston Regional Special Olympics will be held Tuesday, April 11, at the Senior High School Stadium, it was announced today.

John Andrews, recreation director of the Regional Diagnostic Clinic, is serving as the regional olympic director. The meet is being held under the sponsorship of the Missouri Special Olympics, Inc.

Andrews said mentally retarded children from area training schools and special education classes of local schools will participate in the Olympics is composed of five events. They include the 50-yard dash, the 300- yard run, the softball throw, the standing long jump and the high jump. There will be competition for both boys and girls, he added.

"A unique feature of the Special Olympics is the competitive division concept," Andrews said. Each event, he explained, is divided into age groups: eight to nine- year- olds, 10- 12-year- olds, 13- 15- year- olds, 16- 18- year- olds, and 19 and over. Andrews added that in order to give each child the best chance of competing, each age group is divided into ability groups. Each competitor will be tested in his events prior to the meet and then assigned to a division.

Winners from all division will then advance to the Fourth Annual Missouri Special Olympics to be held on the Missouri Valley College campus at Marshall on June 3. Approximately one- thousand children are expected for the state meet.

The 100 state winners will have the opportunity to advance to the International Special Olympics at Los Angeles in July.

OUR KIND
OF PEOPLE

The Congressional Medal of Honor Society of the United States of America is probably the most select private club in the world. Consisting of 305 living holders of the Medal of Honor from a veteran population of 28-million, the Society's members hold the nation's highest military award for bravery. The medal, created by Act of Congress, was signed into law by President Lincoln on December 21, 1861. It is the country's oldest decoration in continuous use. Since its inception, 3,376 medals have been awarded.

The President awards the medal in the name of Congress to persons who, while on active duty in the armed forces of the United States, perform acts of heroism — at the risk of life, above and beyond the call of duty. Despite having met this common standard of accomplishment, members of the Society are most uncommon for they represent no single rank, branch of service, station in life, race, color, creed or national origin.

Foremost among the objectives of thy Society are: to serve our country in peace as they did in war, to inspire and stimulate our youth to become worthy citizens of our country and to foster and perpetuate Americanism.

In furtherance of these objectives the Society has established a Gold Medal Patriots Award which, of itself, has become one of the great honors of our time. On April 27, 1972, at a commemorative dinner in New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, the medal will be given to the Hon. David J. Mahoney, chairman of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, in recognition of his contributions toward a more significant understanding of the historical meaning and future implications of the American experience.

Mahoney, who heads Norton Simon Inc., has frequently been referred to as the "Salesman for America." As chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, it is his responsibility to channel the energies and imaginations of all Americans in leading the country toward a truly meaningful observance of its Independence.

In the conduct of this task, Mr. Mahoney will have the support of many organizations and Americans from all walks of life, but no one, or any group, will strive to perpetuate the ideals of Americanism more than the members of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society. Its members represent the kind of people who have led our country to greatness and world leadership.

According to the Idaho Power Company, the country's generating system helps to keep your electric clocks at the correct time. The utility company notes that "Some years ago, electric companies throughout the country agreed to use a standard of 60 cycles per second for a frequency of alternating current power generation. Today, electric clocks in the nation count seconds at the same speed. To make sure, time of a master clock in Canton, Ohio -- accurate to within a few thousandths of a second -- is constantly compared with that of a clock operated from the nation's power systems. If these clocks vary by two seconds, notice is given to all electric utilities to change generation slightly to correct the time. The frequency of an electric motor that drives a clock is driven by the frequency of the alternating current. If it receives 59 cycles per second, it runs slow. If it receives 61, it runs fast. It must receive 60 cycles per second."

LET'S COOL IT!

And actions of the USD 409 board of education yesterday in meeting a crisis resulting from tensions among white and black students is to be commended.

Simmering and reaching the near boiling point on several occasions in past years, the growing racial tension at Atchison High School finally exploded in a general melee during the noon lunch break yesterday.

School officials and police moved swiftly to quell the outbreak. This reduced the number of injuries as well as possibly more serious tragedy for our young people.

Cooperation of the community is needed in bringing about an amicable settlement of the situation. We are sure the school officials, parents and law enforcement officials as well as the great majority of students are making every effort to see that this is done.

With that in mind, the board of education has arranged a general meeting of all concerned to be held at the Atchison High School auditorium this evening. It is hoped from this meeting that a program will emerge in which activities at our high school will return to normal.

Atchison High school has always been integrated. For years before the integration movement blacks and whites got along peacefully at AHS, both in the classroom and on the athletic field. There is no reason that this should not be so today.

Concerned parents have every right to expect that their children are safe in our schools. Education of the children and young people should not be jeopardized by a minority of students, white or black, who find violence as a means to win recognition.

As events stand today, solution to the problem depends on the cooperation of parents with school board officials in seeking the right methods in reopening Atchison High school and keeping peace in its halls.

It is time an incident of yesterday's proportion is met headon, not by school officials alone, but by the entire community.

OF MONKEYS
AND MEN

In a more serious vein, scientists and students from the University of Wisconsin offered observations on man based upon research with monkeys at the Wisconsin Regional Primate Research Center.

Drs. Harry Harlow and Allyn Deets concluded that aggression is probably an inborn trait in primates — including humans.

The researchers theorize that aggression toward members of the same species may be an important factor in allowing some primates to adapt to changing living conditions. "The relatively aggressive rhesus monkey has been able to adapt to environment ranging from remote forest areas to overcrowded urban ghettos," they said.

Gorillas, however, which display relatively little aggression toward each other, "are now threatened with extinction, being unable to cope with man's encroachment upon their traditional habitat."

In a related study, nine undergraduate students reported that monkeys forced to live in crowded cages with several other strange monkeys become alarmingly more aggressive than usual.

Jake Emmerick, a senior psychology major and the group's spokesman, said the results of the study of monkeys caged under various degrees of crowding have great relevance to man.

When four monkeys were housed in a cage meant for one animal, rates of aggressive behavior jumped. Four monkeys kept together in larger cages showed less inclination toward aggressive behavior, and even when aggression did occur, the victim had a chance to escape.

Emmerick noted that prisoners are similar to overcrowded cages of monkeys. As long as human prisoners are kept in crowded facilities, he continued, there is little chance that they will learn to adjust to life outside the prison.

PRODUCT SAFETY STANDARDS ARE ENDORSED BY INDUSTRY

Support for federal safety standards for common household products has been voiced by the National Association of Manufacturers. But the NAM warned that proposed legislation "will prove no monument to safety progress, if confined solely to government standards-making, and should not be represented to the public as such."

The industry spokesmen told the Senate Commerce Committee that "as far as we can determine, U. S. manufacturers overwhelmingly recognize the legitimate interest of the federal government in the safety of products in national markets."

They also contended that faulty products cause only small fraction of injuries and that most occur through the "hazards of human behavior." For these reasons, NAM predicted that the effect of the proposed legislation "would be minimal" in terms of lessening accidents and injuries.

Voluntary Action Praised... In accepting the objectives of proposed safety legislation, the Association called for "every opportunity to remedy any problems" through voluntary standards prior to imposition of mandatory rules and for extensive research and educational programs with regard to use of consumer products. "We further ask for every procedural safeguard against precipitous or over-zealous administration in this largely untried area of regulation," the Association said.

The statement also asked for congressional and judicial protection in determining the "balanced public interest" and said, "there must be no one-man decision-making affecting the interests of diverse consumers, employees, investors, taxpayers and others who comprise the whole public interest."

Declaring it was "under no illusion" as to accepting the burdens of technical data, penalties, government misinformation and errors, and adverse publicity, the Association spoke vigourously against "hasty or irresponsible action in the name of safety."

Principles Listed... Other basic principles advocated by the Association called for extensive research to establish a need for mandatory standards before promulgation; maximum reliance on voluntary standards and informal procedures which it declared were faster and provided as much safety as mandatory rules; the establishment of a presidentially-appointed board to issue safety rules after a finding of need by the safety administrator; and Congressional review of product standards.

THE MINDLESS SLAVES OF COMMUNISM

Through the "magic" of U.S. space satellite technology, the world has been allowed to see the zombie-like thousands of enslaved Chinese sweeping the snow on the streets of Peking. Young and old, strong and weak, male and female, they turn out like a bunch of robots. Silent, uncomplaining, joyless, they march to the beat of the drums of their communist masters. Expressing no thoughts of their own, with love amputated from their lives. The faceless Chinese in their hundreds of millions are permitted only to live for the greater glory of the communist party and the iron dictatorship of the state, which reaches into every block, every family, every life of a quarter of the earth's population.

Informed Freedomists knew before seeing it on TV's revealing eye that the 800 million Chinese were treated as mindless slaves. The mystery is that so many seem to find the sight of these robots inspiring. Thank goodness it is not the good U.S. working people who are filled with reverential awe at the hand-swept cleanliness of China's streets and the stoic slaves who worship their masters, or else.

With some network announcers praising the results of this bloody communist supression of every human right and freedom, the good people of this land should make it a point to call to the attention of family, friends and neighbors the realities behind the grinding equality brought to full flower by communism. If properly alerted, our people will be stronger than ever in resisting the praise of such destructive, all-powerful, ever-present dictatorship which denies love, laughter and the pursuit of happiness and freedom. The U.S. public will have to do most of the alerting for themselves. Our political leaders and our national networks are selling the other side instead of promoting freedom.

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — When Democrats run afoul of federal corruption laws, the Justice Department quite properly throws the book at them. Only last month, for example, aging Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., got an 18-month sentence for taking a $25,000 bribe.

But this same zealous prosecution doesn't seem to apply to loyal Nixon supporters on Capitol Hill.

For instance, we wrote in March 1970, that Rep. Jim Collins, R-Tex., had been fleecing some his employees out of part of their federal paychecks.

But it was Collins's administrative assistant, George Haag, who wound up with a 23-count kickback indictment. For weeks thereafter, the loyal Haag kept his mouth shut about Collins, whose elegant manners have won him the nickname "Gentleman Jim."

But a few days ago, Haag decided that Collins wasn't so gentlemanly after all and blew the whistle on him.

Through a new lawyer, Tom Wadden, the disillusioned Haag got word to Federal Judge Oliver Gasch that he feared he had been gulled by Collins into putting his own head in the noose.

During the pre-indictment FBI investigation, Wadden said, the Congressman retained the prominent Dallas law firm of Golden, Burrow, Potts and Boeckman to defend Haag. The legal fees were picked up by the Congressman.

"Certainly, a logical inference," the Judge was informed, "would be that the firm was retained IN FACT to represent Congressman Collins's interests. . . and only coincedentally those interests of Haag when they did not conflict with the Congressman's."

Collins got cash?

Furthermore, charged Haag, the government "is in possession of evidence that irrefutably establishes that Congressman Collins received moneys during the indictment period from ...employees."

The government also knows that the employees' money was "deposite in the Congressman's personal checking account," Haag alleged.

Yet Collins, thanks to the Justice Department, is still defending Nixon policies on Capitol Hill, while Haag faces a 23-count indictment that could put him in prison.

As to Haag's charges, Collins told us: "Those are not the facts." At the Dallas law firm's foffices, attorney Duncan Boeckman declined all comment.

In a second case, the Justice Department has dawdled for months over Rep. J. Irving Whalley, R-Pa., the ex-UN delegate whose ingenious kickback schemes we began revealing last September.

The FBI made a few desultory passes at Whalley's ex-employees, but failed even to question Robert Collary, a Duncansville, Pa., print shop owner. Whalley paid him thousands of dollars as a "Clerk" on his House payroll. In fact, Collary kicked back $1,500 to $2,000 to Whalley in the form of free printing for Whalley. Both denied this is a "kickback."

Now, Justice may find itself outdistanced by a motorcycle-riding country prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney John Woodcock, of Blair County. Woodcock has been in Washington quietly looking into Whalley's payroll records and political contributions.

No matter who gets to Whalley first, he may find himself indicting an ex-Congressman. After our second series of revelations, Whalley gave up and announced he will not run for reelection in November.

Footnote: To the credit of out-going Attorney General John Mitchell, he moved againstNew England Mafia big shot Paul Coppola, whose extortion and usury activities we revealed in November 1969. Significantly, Coppola is a long-time friend and ex-business partner of Rep. Bob Giaimo-- a Democrat.

Taiwan Training

A secret intelligence report discloses, for example, that Taiwan's National Security Bureau and Ministry of Defense has "concluded agreements with the governments of Cambodia, Thailand and the Republic of Vietnam, wherein (Taiwan) will provide political warfare training for four groups of officers from these countries.

"The political training will be administered and conducted by the (Defense Ministry's) general political warfare department and will emphasize the following subjects: psychological warfare, anti-communist security procedures, the understanding of communist theory and practice, organization of the civilian population and propaganda techniques.

Washington Whirl

Klan Crows -- When the FBI's residential intellectual, William Sullivan, was forced out of imperious old J.Edgar Hoover, even some of Hoover's most loyal allies were distressed. But removal of the capable number three FBI official brought applause from Ku Klux Klan "Wizard " Robert M. Shelton. "We must commend Mr. Hoover's stand against Sullivan," crowed Shelton in the Klan's smear sheet. It was Sullivan's vigorous intelligence worker which brought the Klan to its present low estate.

Health Hearings -- Consumer-conscious Senators Philip Hart, D-Mich, and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, will soon be leveling their guns on private health insurance companies. They have scheduled a series of investigative hearings for early this Spring. The major question the Senators will be asking the insurers is whether they pay hospital bills blindly without checking to see whether the service was of high quality and all charges justified.

WASHINGTON — Working one's way through the weird maze of multi-million dollar welfare money looting is much like revisiting James Bond's Goldfinger. There are secret bank accounts. Corrupt city officials. Faked identities. Political pressures from on high. Prefabricated riots. Grim threats of violence. Ineligibles bumping the poor from impoverished and virtually bankrupt aid-to-the needy "treasuries."

Not much of this will be in the General Accounting Office's (GAO) now famed, still-secret report on millions of ineligible welfare clients. But the criminal looting still is making millionaires of small combines of men.

As you contemplate these figures, remember that the Federal government pays at least 40 per cent of the nation's welfare bill. Thus, if the experts are interpreting their statistics correctly, some $100 million annually is being lost, stolen, wasted or simply handed to crooked operatives in New York City -- and this costs the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare some $40 million of the nation's tax money.

It is estimated that some 60,000 to 65,000 ineligibles are on the rosters in this one city. Until the new city-state - Federal study, now under way, is completed no one will actually know how much money is wasted -- money which could remake many of the big town's ghettos. At this moment, Jule Sugarman, the city's Commissioner of Social Services, tells me that at least $30 million is being wasted or stolen annually. That's definite. And he hasn't even started counting.

And this isn't touching the Medicaid scandals, some of which have broken while some indictments are still to come out of the nation's senior District Attorney, Frank Hogan.

There is, for example, one case in which the accused admitted just as their trial opened they stole $2 million. Just like that.

There is a grand jury report on a factoring (financing) firm which held secret bank accounts containing $1.6 million. This money was piled up with deposits of Medicaid payments sent by corrupt city officials in "payment" of fictitious bills -- or no bills at all. The checks simply were made out to the company and sent along on the theory that the finance firm had paid out money in advance to physicians, dentists and medical clinic directors who allegedly could not afford to wait for the slow-paying city to come through.

One of these finance firms actually went into the medical clinic business itself just so it could defraud he city. Intricate schemes were developed at some clinics to defraud the crippled and ailing poor, even to the point of cheating them on simple pills and drugs.

One city official told Hogan's grand jury one such factoring house dispatched its executives to warn officials of the Medicaid program that if bills submitted by this firm were not paid there "would be riots this summer." There was nothing subtle in this threat of unwrapping pre-packaged riots.

These factoring "houses" discounted medical center billings at a rate of 12 to 15 per cent as a commission for paying Medicaid providers immediately. One firm alone discounted $12 million worth of bills annually at this rate -- thus it averaged about $1.5 million in one year -- on bills which already were padded. Mind you, these are just a few instances out of many which could be reported. And 40 cents out of every stolen dollar comes right out of Federal taxes.

Furthermore, the GAO has been told by New York State officials there are at least 5.3 per cent ineligibles on the city's list of 1.3 million welfare clients.

So lurid is the looting that the city's Human Resources Administrator is developing a system of "welfare banks -- payout centers" to which the client and even the vendors will come with laminated identity cards for cash payments. If such a system can be computerized, the city will set up about 100 of them so centrally located that the welfare and Medicaid people should be able to walk to these "banks", draw cash, or indicate what bills should be paid.

GAO people are not saying New York is typical . They say it's the worst. There are states such as West Virginia where, despite Appalachian poverty, there is welfare honesty and money control.

But there are now about 10.4 million needy families on welfare and Medicaid rolls in he U.S. And they may be increasing shortly by 100,000 persons a month. The needy must not go without dignified help. Their exploiters must not go unpunished. Or doesn't anyone care?

N.H. Primary Race In Home-Stretch

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — In the last campaign day before Tuesday's presidential primary, Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and George S. McGovern went handshaking through New Hampshire's factories today after swapping claims about who was the first to disclose campaign finance sources.

Supporters of both candidates saw little impact on Tuesday's outcome from the first face-toface meeting of the two, along with their three rivals, in Durham Sunday night, and a sampling of factory workers confirmed that.

As Muskie shook several hundred hands at the Doehla Reading Card factory in this industrial town, a heavy majority of workers told reporters they hadn't watched the debate. Most who had weren't swayed.

While Muskie went through plants here and in Manchester, McGovern followed a similar pattern. The admitted underdog, he started an hour earlier.

Asked about McGovern's charge that it was a "farce" to say he revealed his 1970 contributors but stopped when the South Dakota senator failed to follow, Muskie said he had learned that disclosure can't work "if one candidate can set the guidelines."

He said the rules must apply equally to all. In criticizing Muskie, McGovern called on the Maine senator to match McGovern's recent disclosure of all of his 1971 and 1972 contributors, a listing which a Muskie aide termed "phony and self-serving."

The issue proved the chief difference between the two senators on a 90-minute televised debate here Sunday night.

They were joined in the year's first campaign debate by the three other Democrats listed on Tuesday's primary ballot—Sen. Vance Hartke o Indiana, Mayor Samuel F. Yorty of Los Angeles and antipoverty worker Edward Coll of Hartford, Conn.

Muskie, from neighboring Maine, is favored to lead the field Tuesday, but political analysts will be watching his percentage. Early in the campaign, aides talked of 50 per cent as a minimal goal, but a poll published Sunday by the Boston Globe gave Muskie 42 per cent, McGovern 26 and other Democratic candidates a total of 12 per cent with 20 per cent of the vote undecided.

In the Republican primary, President Nixon is expected to win easily over Paul N. McCloskey of California and Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio.

Nixon may also get some Democratic write-in votes—he got 5 per cent of them four years ago.

So will Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, who told several hundred backers in Manchester Sunday he plans to fight actively for the Democratic nomination in other primaries. Backers have conducted a wellfinanced write-in campaign in New Hampshire for the Arkansas congressman.

The debate was actually a series of opening and closing speeches sandwiched around answers to eight questions from a panel of newsmen.

Yorty, who has the backing of conservative publisher William Loeb's Manchester Union Leader, repeatedly attacked the views of Muskie, McGovern and Hartke, calling them "members of the left-wing liberal bloc in the United States Senate." He criticized their votes to reduce defense spending.

"I don't really think they have much to debate each other about," Yorty said.

Coll, who at 32 is three years younger than the constitutional minimum for the presidency, enlivened the proceedings by occasionally waving a black rubber rat to illustrate what he termed "the No. 1 killer in America."

Hartke, who has little of the organized support of his fellow senators, said the primary will prove whether "person-to-person campaigning by a poor boy from Southern Indiana" is still possible, or whether campaigns have been taken over by big money.

McGovern raised the campaign finance question, saying that because of the "serious, corroding power of money on politics" he felt it necessary that New Hampshire voters "understand who is financing th ampaign of the various candidates.

"I have publicly disclosed the names and the amounts of every contributor who has supported in any way the McGovern campaign," he said. "It seems to me that those other candidates who are asking for the trust of the people ought to be willing to make the same kind of disclosure."

Muskie, who has said he won't start to disclose 1972 contributions until the strict new campaign financing law takes effect April 7 and applies to all candidates, said he had disclosed the sources of his contributions in 1970, and "was the first candidate to do so.

"Because of the failure of Sen. McGovern and other candidates to follow my lead, I decided we needed a policy that applied to all candidates, including the president of the United States," he said.

After the program, McGovern said Muskie's statement provided "a little badly needed comic relief," adding it was a farce to talk about disclosures in 1970 before major campaign funding took place. Muskie aides said their 1970 total was about $300,000. The recent McGovern listing totaled $1.2 million.

"There are a lot of people who have contributed and were not in that report," he said.

He later amended that to say that Muskie headquarters had heard from several persons who said they had given $1,000 each to Muskie and McGovern but were omitted from the McGovern list.

Aides to both senators gave figures showing they had spent just under $65,33 for radio and television in the New Hampshire primary, the limit agreed upon by Democratic candidates.

Environmental Complaint May Halt Dam Project

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Environmental Defense Fund will combine a legal tactic already successful elsewhere with an appeal for consideration of human and environmental factors in an effort to shut down the Harry S. Truman Reservoir.

EDF was to file a complaint in federal court in Kansas City charging the dam could cause extinction of the paddlefish, a remnant of prehistoric times that has the body of a catfish a long bill like a swordfish a spokesman said.

The largest concentration of paddlefish, also known as the spoonbill, in the United States is in the area. The only other species is found in the Tangtze River in China.

Scientists recently discovered that blood chemistry of the paddlefish is similar to man's, which makes the fish in demand for research into the cause of human cancer and the reasons for tissue rejection in heart transplants.

The lake formed by the dam would be the largest in Missouri or Kansas, and is about 100 miles southeast of Kansas City, near Warsaw, Mo.

On completion in June 1979, it is expected to cover 55,600 acres at normal water level and up to 209,000 acres at flood stage. It is estimated to cost $294 million.

The EDF complaint seeks a temporary injunction to stop the work because the Army Corps of Engineers has not filed an environmental impact statement with the government as required by a 1969 law.

An Army Engineer spokesman said an environmental impact statement is being prepared

Failure to file such a statement enabled the EDF to win court orders to halt other projects, including the Tellico Dam on the Tennessee River and the Gillham Dam on the Cossatot River in Arkansas.

Penal Director Says Public Need Not Fear Furlough Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Corections Director William G. Miller says the public need not fear prisoners who may soon be released on furlough under a bill pending in the state lgislature.

"We're not going to make any wholesale releases," Miller said, in referring to a bill which would give the department authority to let inmates leave correctional institutions for specific reasons.

"Just because we would have the authority doesn't mean that just any prisoner is going to be granted this privilege," he said.

"We're going to be very careful about who we let out. The man or woman involved is going to have to prove to us that they're worthy of trust."

The measure, which passed the Senate Thursday and was sent back to the House with a minor amendment, provides for furloughs to visit critically ill relatives, attend funerals, seek special medical care not available at the institutions, or to inverview for jobs prior to release.

Miller said more than half the states have some sort of furlough program already in operation and experience has shown it works well and the inmates appreciate the privilege and do not abuse it.

Less than one out of 100 leaves granted in most states result in efforts to escape.

"It is an important morale factor," Miller said, "for the prisoner to know that if a family crisis develops he can be released if his behavior warrants."

Miller noted that there is a built-in security factor in the attitude of inmates themselves. If a prisoner flees while on leave or doesn't come back on time, he knows he will be jeopardizing the chances of his fellow inmates in benefitting from the privilage, he said.

"That in itself may be a better deterrent to abuse than conviction of a felonious escape charge," Miller said.

Currently the best an inmate can hope for if a close relative becomes critically ill is a long distance phone call. The corrections department has neither the funds nor the personnel to send guards along with an inmate to visit sick relatives or attend a funeral.

Miller said the bill under consideration is "humane and fair."

He said he had no objection to a Senate amendment which would require corrections officials to notify local law enforcement authorities, circuit judges and prosecutors when an inmate was soon to be granted leave.

"We do much the same thing now," Miller said. "We often advise them (the inmates) when they are paroled and return to their home communities that it is a pretty good idea to contact local autorities and let them know that they plan to lead decent, constructive lives."

In some cases, Miller said, he has personally advised parolees to contact the victim of the crime and pledge restitution or reparation.

In the discussion of the Senate amendment, senators pointed out that perhaps an inmate made threats against law enforcement officials or witnesses at the time of conviction, and that these people should be warned in advance.

"I can see why there might be some apprehension about this," Miller said. "But sometimes those threats are made under emotional strain and are not really meant.

"Certainly, if we have any reason to think that an inmate might be bent on vengeance, we're simply not going to grant him leave."

Each application for furlough will be screened carefully and considered on an individual basis, Miller said. The nature of the crime will, in some cases, have a direct bearing on the decision.

"We're not going to turn loose drug addicts or child molesters or people who would constitute a threat to the safety or security of the public," he said.

On the other hand, he said, a convict serving a term for murder might qualify for furlough, depending upon the stage of his sentence, his record and his conduct.

The warden and superintendents of the various institutions will set up screening committees to consider each application, and Miller said he would reserve the final decision based on their recommendation.

Properly used, Miller said, the furlough plan can be an effective rehabilitation tool, particularly for young inmates with families.

The chance to renew family ties with wives and children occasionally can go a long way toward preparing a man for his freedom once his sentence has been served, he said.

Miller said he is already preparing guidelines for the program if and when it becomes law. They will closely follow the successful policies used in other states.

FBI Informer Says $50,000 Reward Request Rejected

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — FBI informer Boyd Douglas Jr. acknowledged today he asked the government for a tax-free $50,000 reward for evidence he obtained to prosecute antiwar priest Philip Berrigan and six others on conspiracy charges. He said his request was turned down.

Douglas, testifying at the Harrisburg Seven conspiracy trial, said an FBI agent told him "If my thoughts were along those lines I should forget about it."

The seven are accused of conspiring to kidnap presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger.

Douglas, 31, is the government's key witness and was beginning his second week on the stand. He said he received only $1,500 for a tip that led to arrests in a Rochester, N.Y., draft board break-in in September 1970.

He added he also received $200 in expense money.

Douglas, who had been serving time in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, was paroled in December 1970.

The defense has characterized Douglas as a con man and an "agent provocateur," and hopes to expose him as a liar during cross-examination that may last more than a week.

Last week the defense made public a letter Douglas wrote to an FBI agent in October 1970 requsting a minimum, tax-free $50,000 reward, plus expenses.

"This figure may sound a little high," Douglas wrote, "but considering everything I feel it is worth it to the government ... I will do all I can to help the government obtain enough evidence ...."

His letter indicates he collected some money before he was paroled in December 1970 from the Lewisburg (Pa.) Penitentiary.

About a week later he testified secretly before a federal grand jury that later indicted the defendants. Then he disappeared.

Douglas wrote his reward letter four months after he had begun to betray Berrigan, imprisoned at Lewisburg for destroying draft board files.

Douglas, at the time, was attending classes at nearby Bucknell University under a studyrelease program. Because of this part-time freedom, he said, Berrigan recruited him to smuggle letters in and out of the penitentiary.

The illegal mail delivery was discovered by prison officials and Douglas agreed to cooperate with the FBI.

Flood Deaths Top 100

MAN, W. Va. (AP) — The toll of known dead from the Feb. 26 flood in Buffalo Creek Hollow has risen to 103 and authorities say some 100 other persons are still missing.

Ten more bodies were found Sunday as National Guardsmen used heavy equipment to comb the wreckage of 16 coal camps which were in the path of a torrent of water released when a dam of coal mine wastes broke.

Guard officers estimated they have checked more than 70 per cent of the debris left in the wake of the flood down the 17mile valley, but they declined to predict when the job will be completed.

Singing Guitarist Needs Talking To

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to the letter from the man who said everyone would be better off if we didn't try to save people who attempt suicide. You, Ann Landers called him a dingbat and compared him with Hitler. Well, I guess that makes me a dingbat and a Hitler, too. Furthermore, if you poll the medical personnel in the hospitals, you'll find that the majority are with me, not you.

I work in an emergency room of a large hospital. We see a lot of people who have tried to kill themselves in the head, or slash themselves with a razor. Most of them don't die. We spend a lot time, energy, and money saving those nuts.

Emergency rooms have enough patients --- good people who want to live. Suicidal creeps cut into the quality of care for the emergency patients. In my opinion the law should be changed. Would-be suicides should be given another dose of the same stuff they took before they came in. There are too many people in this world as it is. Why save a person who places no value on his life? Whenever I read about a cop or a fireman who risked his neck crawling out on a window ledge to rescue some crook who threatens to jump, I do a slow burn. Screwy people just louse up the environment. Who needs 'em? ---Hitler's Buddy. Dear Hitler: You work in a hospital, Buddy? You should be working in a morgue where it wouldn't matter whether or not you deemed the people worth saving. Unfortunately, twisted characters like you CAN make a difference. A guy who lines himself up with Hitler has a mind that is not only closed but nailed shut. I won't waste good advice on you, Buddy.

Dear Ann Landers: My 26-year-old brother wants to marry a girl who is 15. She is a long way from being ready for marriage. My brother has asked me to find out the answer to the following questions. I told him I would try. (1) Is there any state where a girl of 15 can get married? (2) If a girl gets pregnant do her parents have to sign for her? (3) If a man marries a girl who is not of legal age against her parents' wishes, will be be put in jail? (4) If they don't get married but just travel together, is this against the law?

Thank you for your help. AS you can see, it's a mess. —— Brother Of A Nut.

Dear Brother: You thanked me too soon. I'm not going to give you much help. State laws vary and I'm no lawyer. Your nutty brother should see both a doctor and a lawyer, and that girl needs some help, too.

Dear Ann Landers: A gal I know thinks she can play the guitar. She also thinks she's a composer. Worse yet, she's under the impression that she can sing. Put these three mistaken notions together and what do you have? A fourth-rate guitar player with a lousy voice singing some crummy songs. She lugs her guitar to every party. Without anybody asking, she takes the guitar out and starts to sing. If everyone doesn't stop talking and listen she is insulted. Last night she put the dead hand on a great evening. Several people slipped out during her "concert." The party was at my place. I'm burned. Any suggestions? --- No Peach In Georgia.

Dear N.P.: If you're a male, talk to her like a Dutch uncle. If you're female, talk to her like a Dutch aunt. She needs to be told.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Easy Way to 'Launder' Bric-a-brac and China

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—After a remodeling and redecorating job I was faced with those pieces of bric-a-brac, china, etc. that had to be washed before they were returned to the shelves, walls, etc. I put rubber mats in the bathtub and covered them with bath towels to "cushion" the bottom of the tub. The required amount of hot water and liquid detergent were put in the tub and then I set the plates, etc., in it. In a few minutes I gave each piece a swish here and there with a long-handled brush and then rinsed them in the wash basin. Soon they were dried and put in their proper places.

Also, I find ordinary metal shower curtain hooks can be utilized as great space savers. They can be used to hang bulky, odd-shaped items in otherwise unusable space, such as putting the hook through the handle of a plastic clothes basket or over the handle on a pail and then hanging the hook on a nail, cup hook or over a coat hanger which may be placed under a shelf. These are also practical for use in the storage of appliance cords—group together and use one hanger for all. Slip nesting measuring cups or other small gadgets on such a hook and then hang it. The sweeper hose can also be slipped through a shower hook which is hung on a hook or nail on a closet door.—MRS. J. McG.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I read in the column about the lady who dyed rice to be thrown after a wedding so it matched the bridesmaid's gowns. I would like to hear of some other unique ideas that could be used for a wedding I am planning.—C. H.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the furniture and appliance manufacturers who make so many things just high enough off the floor so plenty of dust lands under them but not high enough to sweep under. I do wish they would build pieces up so they could be swept under or else rest flat on the floor. I have torn up many a broom trying to clean under such things.—HOLLIE

DEAR POLLY—My problem is every driver's problem. Yesterday a truck shot by us going in the opposite direction on the freeway. My heart almost stopped as one of the large, yellow cardboard barrels fell from his full load and came rolling toward us. Of course, my husband hit it. The front end of our new car was caved in and we were a little shaken up—all because some truck driver had a loose barrel. This isn't the only obstacle that has been found on the freeway. There have been sacks, boxes, overstuffed chairs, kid's tricycles. You name it and it is scattered here and there. If any of you had hit this blasted barrel, what would you have done, or did you ever hit anything?—MRS. H. A. S.

DEAR POLLY—One of my Pet Peeves is with the manufacturers of men's slacks and pants who put white pockets in dark pants. They show especially when the man is seated and this really looks horrible.—ORPHA

DEXTER — Jaycee Wives were hosts February 28 to the Dexter and Bloomfield clubs of A.A.U.W. at a special meeting held at the Dexter Methodist Church. Entertainment for the evening was provided by Mr. Wilson Jarrell, Mrs. Lowenne Land, Mrs. Wanda Cole, Mr. Howard Jones, and Mrs. Sue Cowan as they performed excerpts from the Broadway Musical, "Fiddler on the Roof."

During the business session of the meeting a check in the amount of $50 was presented to the president of the Beautification Council, Mrs. Shirlene Jorden.

It was decided that the name for the A.R.C. bus, transferring children daily to the Sikeston Sheltered Workshop, should come from the students who will ride the bus. The Jaycee Wives will then pay for the printing of the signs. After the first Sunday in March, the club will begin sending letters to local clubs for contributions for the upkeep of the bus.

The Wives will have a concession stand at the annual Jaycee Gospel Sing to be held March 17 at the High School Auditorium.

Refreshments for the evening were under the theme of "Spring Picnic" and hostesses were Mrs. Larry Myers and Mrs. Gary Dowdy.

Sapp Exhibits Sculpture In Colo.

A relief sculpture by William Sapp, Instructor of Art in the Visual Arts Department of Adams State College, Alamosa, Colorado, has been accepted for the 21st Annual Beaumont Art Museum Exhibition in Beaumont, Texas.

The work entitled, "Wemp," is a 3'X5'X1' white polyester relief. Sapp says his hybrid sculptures are somewhere between painting and sculpture and usually suggest combinations of airplane shapes, river rocks, sea creatures, primitive shields, etc. "Practically any shape that catches my eye can find its way into my work," stated Sapp.

The jurors for admission to the exhibition were Lowell Collins, Director of the Lowell Collins School of Art and the Lowell Collins Gallery in Houston, and Dr. George E. Everett, Art Historian at the University of Houston. The awards jury, which will give over $2,000 in purchase prizes, consiste of the above and Claude L. Kennard, former director of the Beaumont Art Museum The exhibit opens April 9 and ends April 30.

Additionally, the artist has also had graphics on continuous display at the Gallery of Modern Art in Taos, New Mexico since last December.

Cape Central Seeks 'L' Crown

Three St. Louis high school basketball powers are among five teams returning to the Class L state tournament after winning regionals over the weekend.

Northwest, McCluer and Kirkwood join with Raytown South and Sedalia for repeat trips into the sweet state tournament bracket. None of the five made it into last season's finals that saw Vashion place first with a 78-72 victory over Kansas City Paseo. KC Rockhurst finished third with an 80-50 victory Over DeSoto.

Raytown South was the only member to get past first round play last season before losing to Paseo, 57-50, in the quarterfinals.

Kirkwood is the only undefeated team heading into tonight's first round action at eight sites throughout the state.

Friday night at Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau Central rallied in the fourth quarter to pull away from a persky Charleston squad and into a first round state game at Cape Girardeau's Houck field house Monday against Farmington.

Dick Buxton and Hunter Stiegemeyer paced the Bengals into the state tournament with 26 and 19 point efforts. Alford Gordon had 19, Alvin Pierce 16 and Albri Cassell 14 to pace the Bluejays effort.

Charleston trailed only 50-47 going into the fourth quarter after holding a 14-10 lead in the first period, but couldn't match the Tigers rebounding strength.

The Bengals carry a 26-3 season record into tonight's 7:30 match with the leadbelt winner, Farmington Knights. The winner advances into a quarterfinal round match Wednesday at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis against tonight's Augustinian – St. Louis Sumner game.

HALL NAMES CASSIO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marty Cassio, 65, a native of Palermo, Italy, is the latest member of the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame.

MU Hosts Leader Tuesday

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The storm warnings are up for Tuesday night in the Big Eight Conference basketball race.

Kansas State's front running Wildcats move into Missouri, where the Tigers, a game behind, hope to square things.

If the Wildcats win, it's all over. If the 19th-ranked Tigers win, the race will be deadlocked and won't be decided until Saturday when both teams play at home, Missouri against Oklahoma and Kansas State against Nebraska.

Two games are scheduled tonight. Nebraska goes to Iowa State, 4-9, and Kansas invades Oklahoma, 8-4, where the host Sooners must win or forget their slim chances for a tie for the top spot.

Kansas State will go into the showdown with Missouri with a league record of 10 triumphs, seven of them in succession, and two losses. The Tigers are 9-3.

The two leaders matched each other with victories Saturday. The Wildcats disposed of Colorado 73-55 in a regionally televised afternoon contest at Manhattan, Kan.

Missouri, well aware of Kansas State's afternoon success, cut down stubborn Nebraska in a night clash at Lincoln, Neb., 61-54.

Colorado Coach Cox Walseth contributed to the Wildcats' victory in no uncertain terms. He charged onto the floor after Lon Kruger was fouled and given credit for a basket on a golatending infraction.

State Champs Crowned

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montgomery County and Advance reigned today as Missouri high school basketball champions in their respective divisions.

Montgomery won its Class M title Saturday night at Columbia by whipping the St. Pius X Warriors 68-48. Essex Richmond took third by beating Willard 66-64.

Montgomery County buried St. Pius in the first half, shooting its way to a 36-26 intermission advantage and had no trouble the rest of the way.

Tony Marteen scored five straight points in the third quarter to give the victorious Wildcats a 16-point bulge. He finished with 22 points. Mark Capra, a freshman, paced the Warriors with 13.

Advance had to come from behind late in the first half to get even at 32-32 in the close game with Morrisville. It was tied again at 53-53 with 4:08 left.

Richard Hitt and Richie Walker took charge at that point and shot Advance to victory. Each finished with 22 points, the same number scored by Morrisville's Randy

Richland Places Third

ST. PIUS' Dwight Sutphin (42) seems to be shying away from the basketball because of an artist conception of an explosive during a Friday night semifinal round game of the Class M state tournament at Brewer field house in Columbia, but really the big foward watches the ball because Richland's John Sims (43) slapped the ball away. St. Pius placed second in the state and used its defensive rebounding to move past the Rebels.

By RON JAYNES
Standard Sports Editor

COLUMBIA — Southeast Missouri basketball power, the Richland Rebels, led for only 26 seconds in the consolation game of the Class M state high school basketball tournament Saturday night but that was all they needed to take home the third place prize and end their season with a 31-2 record.

Willard, attacking the tall and talented bootheel Rebels in the same manner that Kansas City St. Pius did in Friday's semifinal match that left the events winningest team with a 75-67 defeat, led for 31 minutes and 34 seconds before falling prey to a late game Reb charge that gave them a 66-64 verdict.

Defenses, which the mighty RHS Rebels seemed to solve with ease through the regular season and two games into the state tournament, became a big obstical for coach Larry Joplin's cagers in the weekend finals at Brewer Field house and caused them their first state title when St. Pius used an array of defenses to post a 76-67 win in Friday's semifinals and Willard threw the same junk at the Gray Ridge-Essex bunch in the consolation match and almost pulled the same trick.

The highly taunted Richland Rebel offense was throttled in both weekend contests by teams that would have been lucky to win 20 games this season against such SEMO clubs as Senath-Hornersville, Caruthersville, Hayti and Lilbourn. But the duo kept the pressure on the top rated Rebs from the opening tip with full court presses and then switched up when they got down court to keep the Bootheel cagers guessing what was next instead of how to solve the problem.

Rated as the state's top class M high school basketball team by two statewide poll's going into the weekend finals, Richland looked far from their showings on the SEMO hardwoods and didn't play anywhere near their potential except for a late game rush in Friday's semifinals and repeated the feat in the consolitation match.

Coach Bill Gould's Tigers roared into a 7-0 lead before the Rebs cashed their first score of the evening with 5:30 left in the opening period and trailed by as much as 10 points through the match before a late game Reb press pushed them into a 20-9 fourth period advantage and into their third place finish.

Big John Sims provided the spark to life the Rebs into the win, scoring 10 points in the final eight minutes of action. The towering 6-foot-6 center played like a guard through the final quarter, stealing the ball and driving downcourt for fast break layups. He tied the score with 1:40 left and then grabbed off two steals, heaving both times Norman Cole who drew fouls and clamly iced the game with free throws with 26 and one seconds left.

As the fourth quarter began, Richland came out with a scrappy full-court press to counter the Cats' aggressive tactics and shotdown the Tigers 55-46 lead. The Rebs were postered successfully by their smaller opponents for three quarters before settling down and posting their 31st win of the season two defeats.

Willard ended at 29-5.

Leading the Richland offensive barrage was "Big John" Sims with 27 hard fought points. Senior teammate Norman Cole popped in 14 points and brother Dennis Sims added 10 to round out double figure marks.

Rebel coach Larry Joplin felt relieved after the game and he was happy his team shaped up in the final quarter.

"We just played our basic game," Joplin noted. "Our defense came on strong and when John (Sims) began to hit from the outside, we were on our way."

Richland's free throw shooting almost do med them when Cole missed one with 26 seconds left in the game, but a traveling violation by the Tigers gave the Rebs the ball. The Rebs shot a dismal 42.9 per cent from the line of 12 of 28 shots. It's field shooting was 27 of 65 for a 41.5 mark. Willard's figures were 42.3 from the field on 22 of 52 attempts and 66.7 from the line on a 20 of 30 mark.

A key factor in the Rebs march to third place was the dominating rebounding work of John Sims, who's 17 grabs led the team to a 39-30 edge in that department.

Had the Rebels played anywhere near their potential or demonstrated the power that carried them into the state event with a 29-1 season record they could have easily made off with thynumber one prize, but pressure of the state tournament has taken many of the best teams out of action ... even some before they reach the finals.

quarter and was forced to the bench for the remainder of the game. Keith Sherman replaced Rhodes and drew the praises of coach Cookson. "Keith came off the bench and did an outstanding job," the coach emphasized.

Morrisville never said die and kept battling back, hitting jump shots from around the free throw circle and only trailed by two, 47-47 at the start of the last eight minutes of the game.

Richard Hitt, who scored 15 of his 22 points in the first half, hit two straight buckets to jump his Hornets out in front 51-47 with 6:46 left in the game.

With 5:51 left in the game the Hornets threw the ball into the waiting hands of Morrisville players trying to fast break down the court and Morrisville took quick advantage of the costly mistakes and tied the score 51-51.

Richard Hitt drew his fourth foul with 5:08 left and things began to look very gloomy for all Hornet fans concerned. The game see-sawed back and forth until Advance was able to open up a 59-55 edge with 2:55 left and walker raced down court for the clincer. Advance put on a shooting show in the last two minutes of the game missing only one of eight attempts at the basket.

Richie Walker, another all state candidate for the Hornets should be cited for his fine performance in the tournament as he set up the plays and played a great defense from his guard position. Richie scored 22 points in the championship game to tie Hitt for scoring honors.

Advance placed second in the 1957 state championship game, losing to Kansas City Pembroke 50-49.

The Hornets will lose only two players, Richard Hitt and Richie Walker this season so we can look for Advance to make a great attempt to defend their 1971-72 class S title next season.

ADVANCE STATE CHAMPS

By BILL HARRISON
Standard Sportswriter

ROLLA, Mo. — With Advance leading 59-55 Richie Walker hit a fast break layup with 2:10 left in the game and the chants "we're number one," "we're number one," began to ring out from the student cheering section of the Hornets and all the Advance followers broke out with cheers of happiness as coach Carroll Cookson's great basketball team was finally out of danger and eventually won the Missouri state class S championship from Morrisville 69-61 to make all the fans in the southeast Missouri area very proud of their accomplishments.

The Hornets and coach Cookson have something that all schools and coaches dream about and thats a state championship trophy. To win this trophy was quite an accomplishment as most schools never are able to rise to the top of their class and claim the honor of being number one and only a few can lay hold to it even once in their life time.

It's no surprise that coach Cookson was so emotionally charged after the game that all he could say to this reporter in a way of comment was "Oh boy!"

When asked how he thought his team played in the game the Hornet coach made the understatement of the year as he said, "It was a real fine performance."

In case anyone in the area who has seen Advance play didn't recognize their style of run and shoot basketball your eyes might be opened if you knew that Carroll Cookson was a junior in high school at Puxico in 1950-51 when the famed Indians beat Waynesville 42-38 for the 40th win of the season against no losses for the state championship of class B Coach Cookson was a starter on the 51-52 Indians team which won their second straight class B championship from Shelbyville 85-38 20 years ago. Puxico had a 38-2 record that year and the two losses came by one point in the last seconds of each game. Puxico came back to defeat the same teams later in the year by 25 points apiece. Norm Stewart, head coach at the University of Missouri was the center and high scorer for the Shelbyville team.

Quickness, speed, ball handling, and fine shooting proved to be the deciding factor in the Hornets drive to the state championship.

Advance had no easy time against a fine Morrisville team. The Hornets were faced with a very effective zone defense and were unable to work the ball inside so were forced to take the 20 foot shots.

Morrisville displayed fine shooting against the Advance zone defense and jumped out in front 16-10 with 37 seconds left in the intital period as Morrisville blocked out very well under Advance's basket and allowed the Hornets only one shot at a time. Morrisville led 16-13 after the first period of play.

Fouls began to play an important part in the game as with 4:49 left in the second quarter three Hornet players had picked up two fouls apiece. Richard Hitt began to display why he's all state material as he came out in the second quarter and hit three straight 20 footers from his favorite spot in the corner and Advance led for the first time 19-18 with 6:30 left in the first half.

John Rhodes, who had a big night against North Harrison Friday night. was held down by Morrisville and picked up his third personal with 4:29 left in the first half.

The two teams played the type game that was befitting to a championship match as they exchanged baskets the rest of the second quarter and ended the first half deadlocked at 32-32.

Morrisville, which many thought was a slow moving team, kept pace with the Hornets until two minutes were left in the fourth quarter and almost completely snuffed out the fastbreak tactics of Advance. The Hornets did miss a couple of layup opportunities.

Advance, after the two teams swapped buckets for the first few minutes of the third period, enjoyed their biggest lead of the game, 42-38 with 3:50 left in the period. John Rhodes picked up his fourth foul with 3:09 remaining in the third

MARCH 4, 1972 will be a long remembered date in the history of Advance high school ... That's the date the Hornets basketball team were crowned Missouri state Class S champions. At left a happy AHS fan rushes in to congratulate coach Carroll Cookson after his team's accomplishment Saturday night. At right, one of three juniors who will return next season, Terry Wills (42) goes up for a shot in the title game against Mirrisville. The Hornets swept to the title behind a 69-61 win and the leadership of the teams only two seniors, Richie Walker and Richard Hitt.

State Tournament Exciting Experience

By BILL HARRISON

If you've never been to a state basketball tournament it's hard to explain the happy mood everyone gets into, it's sort of like a holiday, especially if the team that you are rooting for is winning. I have been with the Advance Hornets for the finals of the state class S tourney and everyone here at Rolla seems to be from Advance, and they give this town a gay mood.

It's not very often that a high school basketball team gets a chance to become the number one team in their class in the entire state but the last two weeks have belonged to the Hornets and their jubilant followers from Advance.

We have been listening to the comments of many fans and the feeling seems to be unanimous that the best team the Hornets faced was Wright City in the quarter- finals at New Haven.

The fast moving, sharp shooting Hornets have excited all the people in town that have been taking in the finals.

If you wonder what the fans and players do in the daytime while waiting for the big game to begin we can tell you a little about that as this has been the first time I have witnessed the finals of a state tournament myself.

After Advance won the semi- final game from North Harrison all the kids that followed the Hornets up here were busy visiting until late in the night. Many running and playing around the Motels.

On Saturday before the championship game just about everyone went down town to shop around to buy souvenirs and gifts for the folks down home. We saw some of the Advance ball players in a store where my wife and I were browsing around. While we were eating breakfast we overheard a man say that a boy jumped into the motel swimming pool the night before and believe me that was some act because it was very, very cold here.

Most fans sit around discussing basketball in general and many spend a lot of time eating. One fan made the remark to a friend in the motel restaurant that he was "trying to buy the place," since he had spent so much time and money there in two days.

After the Hornets had won the Championship game on Saturday night many of their followers, parents and friends of the players, had a celebration get together in the Holiday Inn restaurants and presented Coach Cookson and his team a victory cake.

We want to congratulate the Advance team and coaching staff on their victory and maybe we can do the same thing next year. All you coaches and players in southeast Missouri try very hard to make the state finals because as any one who witnessed the events at Rolla this past weekend will testify that it can be a lot of fun and a long cherished memory.

Trade Talk In Spring Drills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Texas couldn't hold Denny McLain, what aobut big Frank Howard?

The Texas Rangers dealt McLain to Oakland over the weekend for two minor league pitchers—Don Stanhouse and Jim Panther—and Manager Ted Williams said Sunday that slugger Howard, a stubborn holdout, is also available in a trade "that we could live with."

Since the Boston Red Sox were visiting the Rangers' Pompano Beach, Fla., training camp for an exhibition baseball game, Williams proposed a four-for-one swap with the Bosox.

"What will they give for the big guy?" Williams asked. "I'd go for a four-for-one deal, but it would have to be something we could live with. Put down the names of 10 players from the 40-man roster and we could talk."

Williams wasn't thinking about the Boston stars. Instead, he mentioned people like relievers Sparky Lyle and Bill Lee, utility infielder John Kennedy and rookies Ben Ogilvie and Cecil Cooper.

However, Boston manager Eddie Kasko said he definitely opposed giving four players for Howard, even though the thought of the big fellow aiming at Fenway Park's friendly left field fence is enough to give opposing hurlers even more nightmares.

After the prospect of a Howard trade was kicked around, the Rangers were held to two hits by Ray Culp and Gary Peters and dropped a 3-1 rainshortened 6½-inning decision to the Red Sox.

Elsewhere on the slim exhibition schedule, Minnesota nipped Detroit 2-1 on Steve Brye's bases-loaded single, the Chicago White Sox shaded the New York Yankees 1-0 on rookie Pete Varney's sixth-inning homer just before rain halted the contest and the San Diego Padres walloped Mexico's Red Devils 11-2. The Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets were rained out.

The major news, however, was made off the field.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported that the Indians have been sold to Nick Mileti, who owns the Cleveland Arena, the Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association and the Barons of the American Hockey League.

Mileti said he had no comment "at this time" but it is known that he is opposed to moving the team out of Cleveland or sharing it with another city.

The Plain Dealer quoted Gabe Paul, president of the club—Vernon Stouffer is the owner—as saying: "I'm not saying anything. I'm not denying it and I'm not confirming it. I am not talking."

However, American League owners, who must approve the sale, are expected to meet in Sarasota, Fla., Wednesday with Stouffer and Mileti in attendance.

On the contract front, Baltimore signed first baseman Boog Powell for an estimated $90,000 leaving outfielder Merv Rettenmund the only unsigned Oriole.

Outfielder Willie Montanez came to terms with the Philadelphia Phillies for a reported $28,000. He made $15,000 last year when he was runner-up for National League Rookie of the Year honors.

But the St. Louis Cardinals were unable to reach an agreement with Joe Torre, the NL's most valuable player and Torre said he doesn't think the club is offering him a fair raise. Torre made an estimated $110,000 in 1971 when he batted .363 and drove home 137 runs. He is asking $150,000 and the Cards have offered $130,000.

Jack Anderson Special

Note to Editors:

Because of demands for the full text of the ITT memorandum on which the Tuesday and Thursday columns are based, we are releasing the following to Jack Anderson client papers for use Tuesday and thereafter.

The memo is on the stationery of ITT's Washington office and is dated June 25, 1971. It reads:

"PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL

"To: W.R. Merriam

"From: D.D. Beard (initialed)

"Subject: San Diego Convention

"I just had a long talk with EJG I'm so sorry that we got that call from the White House. I thought you and I had agreed very thoroughly that under no circumstances would anyone in this office discuss with anyone our participation in the Convention, including me. Other than permitting John Mitchel , Ed Reinecke, Bob Haldeman and Nixon (besides Wilson, of course) no one has known from whom that 400 thousand committment had come. You can't imagine how many queries I've had from "friends" about this situation and I have in each and every case denied knowledge of any kind. It would be wise for all of us here to continue to do that, regardless of from whom any questions come; White House or whoever. John Mitchell has certainly kept it on the higher level only, we should be able to do the same.

"I was afraid the discussion about the three hundred /four hundred thousand committment would come up soon. If you remember, I suggested that we all stay out of that, other than the fact that I told you I had heard Hal up the original amount.

"Now I understand from Ned that both he and you are upset about the decision to make it four hundred in services. Believe me, this is not what Hal said. Just after I talked with Ned, Wilson called me, to report on his meeting with Hal. Hal at no time told Wilson that our donation would be in services ONLY. In fact, quite the contrary. There would be very little cash involved, but certainly some. I am convinced , because of several conversations with Louie re Mitchell, that our noble committment has gone a long way toward our negotiations on the mergers eventually coming out as Hal wants them. Certainly the President has told Mitchell to see that things are worked out fairly. It is still only McLaren's mickey-mouse we are suffering.

"We all know Hal and his big mouth: But this is one time he cannot tell you and Ned one thing and Wilson (and me) another!

"I hope, dear Bill, that all of this can be reconciled -- between Hal and Wilson -- if all of us in this office remain totally ignorant of any committment ITT has made to anyone. If it gets too much publicity, you can believe our negotiations with Justice will wind up shot down. Mitchell is definitely helping us, but cannot let it be known. Please destory this, huh?

Pulling Up Stakes

CHANGE IN THE WIND. By Jean and Robert Hersey. Scribners. $6.95.

Robert (he was in advertising) and Jean (she has written several books on gardening and country living) retired five years ago, remaining in their longtime home in Weston, Conn., which is within commuting distance of New York City.

They collaborated on "These Rich Years," published in 1969, to describe their adjustment to retirement — especially the psychological orientation to a new way of life.

This book is a sequel, or companion volume. If you missed the earlier book it doesn't matter too much, as this one is self-contained.

It developed that the Herseys found the cold winters were bothering them; each had minor surgery, which slowed them down for a while; they began to wonder if they could cope with the house and garden much longer. Some city friends moved into a posh retirement village nearby, and almost enticed the Herseys into joining them. Then came a trip to Tryon, N.C., which Robert and Jean had visited many times, and they saw a house they liked. Almost simultaneously a real estate agent had a prospective buyer for the Weston home.

So mainly this is a chronicle of how the Herseys pulled up stakes and settled down again in a warmer climate. There was an interval of several months while changes were being made in the Tryon house, giving them a chance to organize their move. A crisis arose after they had moved, but they weathered that and settled down for good.

The Herseys write well (they take turns writing chapters) and both of them are sensitive to the pleasures of nature. Their story is pleasant reading, whether you are thinking about retirement or not.

Term Paper Market Challenged

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A move is under way in a small but growing number of states to curb what is becoming a successful service industry in college towns from the Ivy League to the Pacific Coast—merchandising term papers on the open market.

In the California Legislature, the New York courts and the Massachusetts attorney general's office, public officials backed or goaded by college authorities are moving against young entrepreneurs who are getting rich by churning out other people's homework.

Ever since a pair of pioneering brothers launched a Boston term paper factory 18 months ago and extended its operations to 49 other branches nationwide, more than 100,000 papers have been sold to students and the number of competing firms is proliferating.

"I am helping students overcome the busy work and repetition and wasted time of going from shelf to shelf and page to page doing term papers in which no learning is involved," says Ward Warren, 23, who with his brother, Kenneth, 27, founded Termpaper Research Unlimited Inc.

The brothers say they did $1.8 million worth of business last year.

Termpapers Unlimited and the others advertise openly in campus newspapers—"Are you cramped for time? Let us help you," reads one ad—and reach students who pay from $2 to $6 a page for documented research on topics as varied as Aztec social structure to Zambian foreign policy.

The papers are composed by ghostwriters, including moonlighting faculty members, graduate students and technical writers—many with M.A. and Ph. D. degrees—who sign agreements relinquishing their rights to their works.

"We've given these trained people a better way to make money and the students have access to a clearing house for information," said Ed Whalen, 29, a former English instructor who is vice president and chief editor for Creative Communications Consultants in Urbana, Ill.

The ghostwriters get anywhere from $2 to $5 a page for their products.

This view—and the practice of peddling term papers—is the target of a measure introduced by California Assemblyman Jim Keysor that would make it a misdemeanor to sell term papers to students in higher education institutions.

"This bill is against the sellers and not against students," said Keysor, a Granada Hills Democrat. "I think getting it passed could be a little tough because people will argue you can't legislate morality."

The reaction of educators and administrators to the term paper business has been mixed, ranging from violent opposition to philosphical re-evaluation of the efficacy of term papers.

Harvard Dean of Students Archie Epps calls the term paper companies "a blot on the conscience of American institutions of higher learning" and an official at Southern Illinois University said the firms reflect "a breakdown in the relationship between faculty and students."

On the other hand, David J. Carson, dean of students at Babson College in Massachusetts, Ward Warren's alma mater, sees the term paper companies as a spur to new thinking.

"Perhaps there will be some serious and beneficial gains out of all this if it causes some reevaluation of the whole process of which term papers are a part," he said.

Ward Warren said students seem to have no second thoughts about buying a term paper. He told a story of a freshman who bought and submitted as his own work a fivepage paper entitled, "Why I wouldn't Use a Professional Term Paper Writing Service."

Not every student is a potential customer, Warren said, and Termpapers Unlimited occasionally advises would-be clients to do the work themselves if the paper is a short one.

Would he himself purchase a term paper prepared by a commercial service? Warren was asked.

Danforth Charges Legislature

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth charged Thursday the Missouri Legislature "has consistently obstructed good law enforcement and has fought improvement in the criminal justice system."

He said the legislature has fallen down on its job and instead of trying to improve criminal justice has resorted to destructive attacks on the courts.

In a speech prepared for a seminar on criminal justice at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Danforth said people in the criminal justice system have come to "realize that we will have no real help from the General Assembly in our efforts."

While the crime problem has been increasing, he said, the legislature seems to have become less interested in doing anything about it.

Two Charleston Boys Get Eagle Badges

CHARLESTON — Two Charleston Boy Scouts were among the 56 Southeast Missouri Council boys who received their Eagle badges Sunday afternoon at an Eagle Court of Honor in Academic Auditorium, Cape Girardeau.

The two are Gary Coon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coon, and Terry Schott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schott. Both are members of Troop 32.

Donald E. Lasater, St. Louis attorney and banker, was guest speaker at the Eagle Court and sponsor of the class of Eagle Scouts. College President and Mrs. Mark Scully were hosts for a reception honoring the Eagles and their parents after the ceremonies.

In dedicating the class of Eagles, Lasater told the scouts that by achieving Eagle rank "you have distinguished yourselves from the rest of your generation. You have marked yourselves by your leadership and are destined to be leaders for the rest of your life."

He reminded the Scouts that the quality of leadership can be used either good or bad and that this quality must be tempered with humility.

Women's Lib Movement Has Hollywood Impact

NEW YORK (AP) — Like it or hate it, the women's liberation movement has really had an impact in Hollywood: Three pilot films were broadcast on the three major networks over the weekend, and each proposed a series for a woman star.

One featured a woman doctor, one cast a woman as a private eye, and the third was built around a woman lawyer. Until now, these jobs have been considered men's work.

Jayne Wyman turned up Sunday night in a pilot on NBC's "The Bold Ones," She played, very attractively, a pediatrician treating a teen-age boy with bleeding ulcers. The hour came in the standard TV-doctor-show mold—Dr. Amanda Fallon even had a younger (male) assistant.

As usual in TV fiction, the good, concerned doctor was able to devote most of her time to one patient. She uncovered the cause of the boy's illness and added a wise little lecture on human relations. The viewer who finds "Marcus Welby, M.D." soothing and leans on the "Medical Center" team, will undoubtedly find "Amanda Fallon, M.D." a bright spot on a schedule—if it makes it.

Saturday night's pilot, "A Very Missing Person," on ABC was vaguely based on a fairly recent Stuart Palmer book. It was a busy story built around dropouts and con men and really didn't make very much sense.

The big problem was trying to fit Eve Arden into the character of Hildegard Withers, the retired school teacher who solves murders for fun. There was constant reference to Miss Withers' advanced age—and Miss Arden did not look in the least like a little old spinster lady. Also her crisp decisive way with a line, a technique that works well for her in comedy, added an aggressive, abrasive note, possibly because the lines were not worthy of the technique.

Susan Hayward's pilot Friday night on CBS, "Heat of Anger," is a natural for conversion into a courtroom series. It was, once again, an overt switch on a familiar format—the experienced older attorney, this time a woman, and the younger, fiery aide played by James Stacey.

The plot revolved around a rich builder charged with murdering one of his high steel workers, a married man who was having an affair with the builder's 18-year-old daughter.

In terms of slick production and good entertainment, the best effort of the weekend was ABC's made-for-TV film, "Fireball Forward," on Sunday night. A tough, taut story about a front-line general faced with a security leak in his division, it had some film footage from the movie "Patton" and Ben Gazzara playing the general. The results were excellent. If the producers could get enough film, it would make a good action series.

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW

Jesus had not been well received in His home district of Nazareth. The community was divided over His teaching and many infuriated over His claims to be sent by God. Yet in neighboring Capernaum He found an eager audience and many of His future disciples would come from this congregation. One was Peter, called Simon, big in the fishing business, influential and well-known. He had been fascinated by Jesus, His authority and His persuasion. Following services one Sabbath he asked the Master to come to his home and help his mother-in-law. She was in the grip of a high fever and needed immediate attention. Jesus healed her and she responded by getting up and serving the whole family.

Two things happened here: A sick woman is made well and Simon is further persuaded that Jesus is more than a bright scholar from Nazareth. Additional revelations will affect Simon and his decision to follow Christ but a dramatic start has begun. Jesus used healing, not as a trick or feat, but to demonstrate the love and majesty of God. Nothing less would convince Simon Peter.

What's The Law

Auto Loss Is Covered

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As it turned out, Ralph's smile was as phony as his check. And, when the check finally stopped bouncing, careless Horace filed a claim to collect for his loss under an insurance policy that covered his car against "direct and accidental loss" and "loss caused by other than collision."

"You've got it all wrong," he was told. "Nothing happened to your car, only to you. You were hoodwinked out of your automobile. That's got nothing to do with your policy."

"My name isn't Mr. Webster," was Horace's answer. "Consequently, I accept words for what they seem to mean. And,since your policy covered me against 'direct or accidental loss,' I'm entitled to collect. For, obviously, my car has been lost to me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit hoodwinked Horace to collect for the loss of his car?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that an insurance policy, if possible, will be construed so as to furnish protection and not to defeat it. In this case, noted the judge, to receive a bogus check in payment for a car is both a "direct and accidental loss" of the car. To part with a car as the result of chicanery, he noted, is as direct a loss as can be achieved. And to be paid with a bogus check is unexpected and, therefore, an accident. Don't lose your voice!

When the person on the other end of your telephone line can't hear you, there isn't much point in talking. If the fault is ours, we want to know about it. But before you speak to us, try speaking up to the other party. If you're holding the handset below your chin, he won't hear much. But if you talk directly into the mouthpiece, your voice comes through loud and clear. Though it's only a small tip, it doesn't leave you speechless.
